FIFTEEN-YEAR SENTENCE IN MEISNER CASE

Trial of Cincinnati Bookmaker For Kidnapping J. S. Labatt Quickly Ends at London, Ont., After Two Defence Witnesses From Kentucky Disappear

Jury Out Little More Than Hour

Canadian Press

London, Ont., Feb. 6.—David Meisner, Cincinnati bookmaker, this afternoon was sentenced to fifteen years on each of three counts against him in connection with the kidnapping of John S. Labatt, wealthy London brewer. The sentences are to run concurrently.

The jury found him guilty and Mr. Justice O. F. McFarland imposed sentence.

He was charged on two kidnap counts and one of robbery with violence.

There was no imposition of lasher, permissible when conviction is made on an armed robbery charge.

MAKES NO DISPLAY

The jury, in the Middlesex County assize court, returned the verdict after little more than an hour's deliberation.

WITNESSES DISAPPEAR

The closing stage of the trial came earlier than expected when, with the defence case cut short by the disappearance of two witnesses, both Covington, Kentucky, police detectives, C. W. Bell, chief of counsel for Meisner, addressed the jury.

At resumption of court this morning the defence rested its case. Mr. Bell announced he had learned LeRoy Hall and Albert Seitter had disappeared. It was reported they had returned to the United States.

Hall was in the witness-box late yesterday and was under a sharp cross-examination at adjournment.

Mr. Labatt was kidnapped on August 14 and released in the early morning of August 17.

Mr. Bell reviewed the treatment tendered Mr. Labatt by the kidnap-

LARGE TIMBER DEAL STUDIED

London Paper Doubts British Government Will Vary Terms With Soviet

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 6.—Doubt the British Board of Trade will be able to reduce, if it so desires, the amount of Russian timber envisaged in a new contract signed for 1935 between Timber Distributors Limited and Russian trade representatives, was expressed to-day by The Financial News of London.

The new agreement calls for delivery of 400,000 standards, at a cost between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000.

The first contract for 1934 called for 3430,000 standards, but that figure was reduced to 35,000 standards by the Board of Trade and the existing "fall" clause, providing for a drop in the price under certain circumstances, was abrogated.

The Financial News said to-day it doubted whether the Board of Trade could take such action as it did last year, largely on Canada's insistence, because since then the new reciprocal Anglo-Russian trade treaty has been signed.

The long negotiations leading to signing of the new contract were caused by fixing of a new fall clause, The News said, leaving in doubt the extent to which this "safeguard" for the Russian exporters applies to the new contract.

PRICE QUESTION

In last year's contract the significance of the clause lay in the fact that, under it, the Soviet might lower its contract price for lumber below that at which any competitors might sell in the British market, irrespective of what the Soviet contract price might be.

Pictures Expected to Bring $1,500,000

"I am growing older," said J. P. Morgan, sixty-seven-year-old New York banker, in announcing part of the famous Morgan private art collection would be sold in anticipation of possible estate administration problems after his death. A group of six old masters valued at $1,500,000, including the Rubens portrait, "Anne of Austria," shown above, will be auctioned soon.

Evidence Given For Hauptmann By Plumber To-day

Flemington, N.J., Jury Told Attic Board State Said Was Used in Ladder Was Not Missing in August, 1934

Associated Press

Flemington, N.J., Feb. 6. — A Bronx plumber testified to-day that an attic floor board, which the state charged was used in the Lindbergh kidnap ladder, was not noted by him to be missing when he investigated a leak in August, 1934.

Gustave Miller, the plumber, said he examined the attic at that time for six or seven minutes and could remember no boards missing.

The state had produced testimony that after Hauptmann's arrest police found a board missing from the attic, and that an upright from the kidnap ladder fitted into the vacant space, jibing with it even to the nail holes and the slant of the nails.

This evidence was further supported by a wood expert, who said the grain of the ladder upright matched that of a section from which the missing floor board had been sawn.

Baby Charles A. Lindbergh was kidnapped and slain on March 1, 1932. The state's contention is that the floor board was torn up before that time for use in the ladder which was left near the scene of the crime.

LOOKED AT FLOOR

"Did you look at the boards," Edward J. Reilly, defence chief, asked Miller.

"I looked at them, certainly, when I walked along," he replied.

ASK NEW BILL BE CHANGED

Labor Delegates Suggest Employers Give More to Job Insurance

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Spokesmen for the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to-day expressed approval in general of the government's unemployment and social insurance scheme, but suggested several changes in the measure, including augmentation of employers' contributions and diminution of those by workers.

The congress, presenting its annual legislation memorandum to the cabinet, asked that the employers' contributions to the scheme be raised from 25 to 30 cents in the case of adult men and that the workers' contributions in the same class be reduced to from 25 to 20 cents. It suggested similar changes in other insurance classes.

The delegation also submitted the forty-week contributory period was too long and that it would debar many from participation in benefits of the scheme.

At the same time it was asked the section setting a seventy-eight-day period for reception of benefits be lengthened.

The congress requested assurance, "in view of the very moderate sums to be paid," that no diminution in benefits would occur in cases where a five-day week prevailed.

MINISTERS LISTEN

The presentation was made by Tom Moore, chairman; R. J. Tallon, vice-president; P. M. Draper, secretary-treasurer, and Mayor James Simpson of Toronto. About fifty delegates were present and were heard by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and ten members of the cabinet.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett congratulated Mr. Moore on the character of his remarks. He could not recall having listened before to any representations that contained so much commendation.

ENGLAND IN SOCCER WIN

Canadian Press

Liverpool, Feb. 6.—England defeated Ireland 2 to 1 in an international soccer game played here to-day. Half time score was 1 to 0 in favor of England.

Ireland played an extremely aggressive game and it was only the ability of the English team to seize opportunities in front of her opponents' goal that resulted in victory for them.

The match was played in clear, cold weather before 30,000 spectators.

Ireland dominated most of the play. Their shots at Hibbs, however, lacked power. Bastin scored after seventeen minutes with a strong shot into the roof of the net.

After the interval, Ireland equalized following good work by their forwards. Coulter centred, the ball being deflected from Hapgood to Stevenson, who scored from fifteen yards out.

Borden, Bennett and King Greet Imperial Press Conference at Capetown

Capetown, South Africa, Feb. 6.—Newspaper publishers and editors, gathered from all parts of the empire as delegates to the Fifth Imperial Press Conference, to-night heard their meeting characterized as a "Conference of the Powers" in a message from Sir Robert Borden, former Prime Minister of Canada.

Messages from Premier Bennett and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal Party of Canada, also were read.

"In impressive an assemblage is indeed a 'Conference of the Powers' and an inspiration to those endowed with imagination to realize its significance," said Sir Robert's message, read at the inaugural state banquet by E. Norman Smith of The Ottawa Journal, who heads the Canadian delegation.

GREAT INFLUENCE

"To our Commonwealth 'league of nations' the service of the press is inestimable," Sir Robert's message continued. "In every advanced democracy it is a commanding in-

All Phases of Fuel Trade, Including Coal, Gas and Oil To Be Bared By Commission

Capital Structures of Companies Included in Exhaustive Scope of Investigation, C. H. O'Halloran, Commission Counsel, Announces at Opening

Business Profits To Be Brought Out

W. A. Cameron, First Witness, Tells of Local Costs and Selling Prices; Favors Dealers Getting $4 a Ton Profit Instead of Present $3.50

The royal commission conducted by Mr. Justice M. A. Macdonald to find out what is the matter with the coal industry in British Columbia, and whether coal, gasoline and fuel oil prices are too high and what action should be taken, got under way to-day in the Court of Appeal room.

C. H. O'Halloran, counsel to the inquiry, inaugurated the proceedings by recounting facts leading up to its inception and setting out its scope. He said that besides investigating all phases of the industry and the distribution business, to find out why costs were as they are, the profits of those engaged in the various branches of the coal business would be investigated.

DETAILED INQUIRY

"I think it may be said that no system of computing cost of production, distribution or to the consumer will be of much assistance unless it is first established that such system confines itself to the actual cost in each instance," Mr. O'Halloran said. "This may mean a detailed inquiry into the capital structures of the companies, the ascertainment of the actual amount of cash money expended in various enterprises, the actual value of the undertakings or assets purchased, a comparison of the actual value of the undertaking, with the capital outlay purported to be represented in the capital structure.

"Detailed consideration of the methods of carrying on the various businesses is necessitated so that it may be seen whether or not the business structure is too unwieldy, too ambitious or too expensive for reasonable business requirements and thus adding a percentage of overhead ultimately absorbed by the consumer."

Mr. O'Halloran said it would be a matter to consider whether a monopoly existed, whether there was fixing of prices and "other factors at work which bring about the addition of costs in the doing of business, which ultimately falls on the consuming public?"

Other aspects of the coal problem to be investigated here, he said, included such as: "Is the mining and sale of coal conducted in a manner to comply with modern demands and methods? What has been done by the coal producers of this province to keep abreast of the march of progress?"

Mr. O'Halloran declared there was "a feeling among a large section of the population that the price of coal

JAPANESE CREW FEARED DROWNED

Associated Press

Tokio, Feb. 6.—The Japanese freighter Fuji Maru was believed to have sunk with its crew of twenty-six to-day in a fierce snowstorm off Shidzuoka.

The vessel signalled for help as it wallowed through heavy seas and then disappeared from the sight of those on board nearby fishing craft. The fishermen were prevented by rough water and the high wind from going to the distressed freighter's aid.

The Fuji Maru was a craft of 1,000 gross tons.

Craft Aground Off Vancouver

Steamer Cruiser Ashore Off Stanley Park; Passengers Taken Off

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Feb. 6.—The steamer Cruiser of the Pacific Navigation Company went ashore about noon to-day in a heavy fog near Siwash Rock, landmark on the shore of Stanley Park at the entrance to Vancouver Harbor. No one was injured and a Pacific Salvage Company vessel took the passengers off.

The Cruiser, now engaged in the Howe Sound passenger trade, was formerly the missionary ship Thomas Crosby.

The mishap was the third in three days of heavy fog over Vancouver harbor and the Gulf of Georgia. On Monday the Canadian Pacific steamship Princess Alice was in collision with the West Vancouver ferry No. 5, which sank, with the loss of one life. Twelve hours later the C.P. Ss. Princess Charlotte and the Union steamship Chelohsin escaped serious damage in a minor collision off Point Atkinson.

Police Control Great Crowds In Streets of Paris

Throngs Shout "Long Live the King" After Day of Minor Disorders; Number Arrested

Associated Press

Paris, Feb. 6.—Crowds shouting "Long live the King!" swirled beneath the newly lighted lamps of the Place de la Concorde tonight following clashes with the thousands of police and guards who surrounded the scene of the riots of exactly one year ago.

The day had passed with only minor disorders, despite the tense atmosphere—once when Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin was hissed by a crowd at Notre Dame Cathedral, again when royalist youths clashed with the police at the Place St. Michel, and again within the very courtyard of police headquarters.

GARBAGE THROWN

In the last named place, 300 demonstrators shouted "Down with the assassins!" at the mobile guards being held there in reserve. The invaders threw garbage at the guards, but were repulsed with a police charge and five were arrested.

At the Place St. Michel thousands of young men, most of them in uniform, chanted the Marseillaise and shouted "France for the French!" they withstood a police charge in the Place St. Michel, but police clubbed them so thoroughly they kept moving.

PREMIER HISSED

The clash, in which many of the young men struck down their opponents with loaded canes, occurred just after an unpleasant incident at Notre Dame Cathedrah where Premier Pierre Etienne Flandin and Prefect of Police Langeron were hissed and jeered as they entered and left the religious service in memory of the nineteen persons who died a year ago to-day in riots throughout the city, when 1,500 others were hurt.

Inside the great church, Premier Flandin bowed his head and listened to the memorial mass celebrated by Cardinal Verdier. In the choir stood a flag draped casket symbolizing all

Senate To Debate Canada and War

If Dominion Fights, Senator J. J. Hughes, P.E.I. Citizen, Suggests No One's Salary Be Higher Than Common Soldier's Pay

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Notice of his intention to submit in the Senate a resolution on Canada's participation in war has been given by Senator J. J. Hughes, Liberal, Prince Edward Island. His proposals are rather extensive and expectations are the resolution will provide a full-dress discussion.

The resolution proposes, in the event of Canada again going to war: (a) Conscription of wealth and man and woman power. (b) Establishment of a war council on which would be representatives of the provinces and the Dominion, with power to the council to assign men and women to the positions it considers they are best qualified to fill. (c) Wages, salary or income for personal use or retention of no person in Canada, "from the Governor-General down," and including officers of the army, to be greater than the pay of the common soldier, and (d) All expenses of war to be met by taxation and capital levies, with obtaining of loans prohibited, so that the debt of the country will not be larger at the end of war than it was at the beginning.

New Safety Rules For B.C. Elevators

Interlocking Doors Ordered Within Two Years; Move to Combat Fatalities

As a direct move to combat accidents and fatalities in elevators, the provincial government to-day approved new regulations under which all elevators in hotels, public buildings and warehouses must be equipped within two years with interlocking gates.

This action was regarded as the most important step in many years to ensure absolute safety in operation of elevators. It will practically eliminate chances of fatalities of which there have been three in the last fourteen months.

Interlocking gates are so devised that an elevator will not move unless both inside and outside gates are locked.

Investigation of elevator accidents in recent years has shown that the chief reason was the failure to have the inside gates closed before the machine started, Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, explained. A passenger, losing his balance or being jostled, would fall against the front wall and be crushed by the moving elevator. With the gates closed this would not happen.

Survey of existing elevators in the province has shown that compliance with the order will require an expenditure by owners of something like $200,000. For this reason two years' notice is being given so the burden will not be excessive at one time. At present, of the 207 passenger elevators in operation 209 are properly equipped in this way and the other 128 are not. There are 416 freight elevators without interlocking gates.

In the meantime, all new installations must conform to the new regulation, it was explained.

The government also overhauled general regulations respecting elevators. This was done after several years of study of the methods of operation. Outside of the provision for interlocking gates the other changes are not of a drastic nature, specifying in the main that when existing equipment is alighted it may be made to conform with regulations governing new installations.

UNIFICATION OF RAILS TOPIC

E. W. Beatty Says Proposals Safeguard C.P.R. and C.N.R. Labor

Canadian Press

Regina, Feb. 6.—Unification of Canadian railways was inevitable and once the Canadian government should accept unification in principle then a detailed agreement could be negotiated without delay, declared E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, in an address to the annual meeting of the Regina Board of Trade yesterday evening.

Interests of labor as well as all other interests could be well protected in a unification scheme, Mr. Beatty declared.

"When a competent authority is ready to deal with my proposal, or offer a better alternative, I assure you that you will have no reason to complain of delay or lack of definiteness on my part," he said.

Besides dealing with the railway problem, Mr. Beatty said tariffs should be directed at fair distribution of the national wealth. Agriculture should be assured a fair return on investment.

"I am told I propose to throw thousands of men out of work," Mr. Beatty said. "I repeat what I have already said—that protection for labor is a necessary part of my plan, and that savings in that regard should be made gradually, wisely and considerately.

British M.P.'s Discuss Vancouver Bond Cut

Commons Told By Dominions Secretary He Communicated With Ottawa

Canadian Press

London, Feb. 6.—The City of Vancouver's proposal to cut interest on its bonds from 4 to 2 per cent was raised in the House of Commons this afternoon when Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominions, assured a questioner that while he had, of course, no power to interfere with the Dominion, he had, on being informed of the anxiety in many parts of the country, communicated with the Canadian government on the matter.

Nicholas Grattan Doyle, Conservative, asked what the decision of the Canadian authorities would be following prospective action by the city, which is scheduled to hold a meeting of bondholders February 11 to consider the reduction.

Mr. Thomas said he was informed that if Vancouver made arrangements for the reduction, the British Columbia government would be willing to legislate for such an arrangement, but only on condition the bondholders approved.

Mr. Thomas added he was aware of the intense anxiety existing among the investors in this country, but he thought the recent statement of the Canadian government in the House of Commons at Ottawa regarding the interests of the holders of the bonds should do more than anything to alleviate this anxiety.

Mr. Doyle asked whether the minister could hold out any hope that those who had invested in these bonds would not be "sacrificed," whereupon Mr. Thomas merely said the anxiety of bondholders had been communicated.

Inquiry Into Fuel Prices In B.C. Opens

is unreasonably high, and likewise that the price of gasoline is unreasonably high."

DEALERS PRESENT

Seated at the counsel table as legal counsel for the Canadian Collieries was Bruce Robertson. With him was H. R. Plummer, general manager for the Canadian Collieries.

The courtroom was filled with representatives of the twenty-eight Victoria coal dealers, all of whom have been summoned to give evidence before the commission.

W. A. Cameron of the Cameron Wood and Coal Company, and Leslie Aylard of the Camosun Coal Company were set down as the first to be called.

Mr. O'Halloran explained it was proposed that the commission devote the rest of the month of February to investigating the cost of coal to the dealer and the consumer in Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster. After that, it is planned to investigate the cost at the Vancouver Island mines. The question of oil and gasoline costs will be taken up later.

Appointment of G. P. Childs of Price, Waterhouse as accounting adviser to the commission was suggested by Mr. O'Halloran. Other expert appointments suggested were those of Dr. W. A. Carrothers as economic adviser and Kenneth Moody as technological adviser on combustion.

"Before proceeding with the evidence, it is of some importance I think to consider in brief outline the objects and scope of the commission in order that all persons in the province may have a clear idea of the objects of the commission and the reason therefore, and may, therefore, have the opportunity of making submissions to the commission," Mr. O'Halloran said.

Detailed consideration will be given, Mr. O'Halloran said, to the methods of carrying on the various businesses so that it may be seen whether or not the business structure is too unwieldy, too ambitious or too expensive for reasonable business requirements and thus adding on a percentage of overhead ultimately absorbed by the consumer.

"This phase of the matter cannot be left without reference as well to the necessity for considering the position enjoyed by the companies having under their control public commodities as coal and gasoline and fuel oil. Coal, gasoline and fuel oil are vital necessities in this age; one might say that they are as important to the economic and industrial life of our province as are milk and bread to the individual resident of the province.

"It would, therefore, be a matter for consideration to ascertain the extent of competition that prevails in these public industries. Is there a monopoly existing? Is there a fixing of prices? Are there other factors at work which bring about the addition of costs in the doing of business which ultimately falls on the consuming public?

VALUE TO INDUSTRY

"The commission is to consider the respective value to industry at large of coal and petroleum products and, generally, the respective part that each plays in the development of industry in this province.

"Representatives of the various important industries of the province will be asked to give evidence upon the respective importance of coal and petroleum in their industries and the respective economic value of each to the development of the said industries and the consequential effect thereof upon the residents of the province.

"It is hoped there will be full opportunity to discuss the relative economic values of coal and fuel oil; it is asserted by some that the trend of modern industrial development is towards a greater use of fuel oil to the exclusion of coal and coal products, yet on the other hand there are those who assert with equal force that coal can be used as efficiently as oil in any industry in the province, having regard not only to the economic value of the particular industry but the economic welfare of the province as a whole.

"From what I have said it is not to be inferred that this commission is trying the case of coal vs. fuel oil or vice versa. It is desired, of course, as I have stated, to obtain a correct view of the relative value of each to industry and the economic development of the province; but overriding this consideration is the economic development of the province as a whole, having in mind that we on this Pacific Coast are living in a favored portion of the world, and it is to be expected that within the time of a few generations to come, this province will contain a greatly increased population and will have made great advances in manufacturing and industrial development generally.

ALLIED INDUSTRY

"In considering the respective values of coal and fuel oil to the people of this province, it will no doubt be brought to the commission's attention that coal is produced in large quantities in this province and particularly on Vancouver Island; that it gives employment to a great number of men and that the development of allied industry is largely affected by the prosperity of the coal mining industry.

"No doubt it will also be brought to the attention of the commission that oil is not yet produced in the province of British Columbia; that our supplies of crude oil are imported into this province from South America and from the United States of America—in a word, from the large oilfields of the world. How soon the source of supply from such oilfields may be exhausted is a matter for thought. How much the consumers of the products of petroleum are affected by the control existing throughout the world of the supply of petroleum, whether by private or international agreement, is a matter that cannot be ignored when one has to consider the economic welfare of the province.

"The eventuality of the outbreak of war between great nations, or agreements between great nations restricting the supply of oil for internal or external causes, may all have an effect upon the economic development of this province which no man can estimate.

CRUDE OIL AND GASOLINE

"From this reference to the two great public necessities of coal and petroleum it is but a further step to consider among other phases:

"Firstly—In respect to crude oil and gasoline. Are we importing into this province the grade of crude oil best adapted for the economic recovery of gasoline as a primary product or is such crude oil primarily best adapted for the economic recovery of fuel oil and other petroleum products?

"Secondly—In respect to coal. Is the mining and sale of coal conducted in a manner to comply with modern demands and methods? What consideration has been given in this province to the economic feasibility of the extraction of petrol and other by-products from coal, in the light of what has been accomplished successfully in England and elsewhere, and in any event, what are the true commercial possibilities in this regard?

"Coal is admittedly one of mankind's greatest gifts. As a source of heat and power alone its uses are limited only by our scientific knowledge. Blest as we are in this province with a richness of supply that passes the estimation of man, can any survey of our economic development be otherwise than futile which does not include a full investigation: Firstly, of what has been done by the coal producers of this province to keep abreast of the march of progress, and, secondly, what has been done elsewhere to scientifically harness this great natural resource for the use and effort of the people.

"What I have said I think will indicate in some small way the necessity for this royal commission coming into being and the importance of the task that Your Lordship has undertaken in accepting the commission.

FRICES

"An additional reason for the thorough investigation called for under the terms of the commission was:

"A feeling among a large section of the population that the price of coal is unreasonably high, and likewise that the price of gasoline is unreasonably high. These matters of investigation are specifically set out in paragraph 3 of the commission. In the light of investigations into the price of gasoline in other provinces of Canada Your Lordship will have some estimation of the thoroughness that is required in the investigation.

"I am informed that application has recently been made to the Price Spread Commission, sitting at Ottawa, to fully investigate the price of gasoline, but that the Ottawa commission was unable to accede to this request by reason of the mass of other work on hand.

FIRST WITNESS

W. A. Cameron, managing director of the Cameron Wood and Coal Company Ltd., Victoria, was first witness to be called and examined by Mr. O'Halloran. He testified the firm had been in business for ten years, was owned by himself and J. F. Cameron and rented its coal yards. Total investment in the business, he said, was $14,404, which included equipment for the wood as well as coal. Against this total investment, was a reserve of $8,651. The proportion of the investment for handling coal would be about one-third of the total.

Mr. Cameron explained the trade classifications of coal, such as lump, egg nut, pea and slack. Sizes of the various grades varied with the mines, as each mine sorted its coal with a different sized screen. He gave the prices of the various grades, running from $7 a ton for slack to $10.75 a ton for large sized Nanaimo-Wellington lump, all prices being for the product delivered to the domestic consumer in Victoria.

GETTING UP STATISTICS

In reply to questions from Mr. O'Halloran as to how he obtained his supply of coal, Mr. Cameron explained that for Island coal, he put the order in through Guy Langton, agent for the Vancouver Island Coal Sales Ltd., and the coal would be shipped to the Cameron company direct from the mines.

Mr. Cameron explained that he had not been able to prepare all the statistics about his business asked for by the commission by letter. He said that although he had had to get in extra help for ten days and had worked late the last two nights on the records, he had been able to compile so far information covering only the last two years of the several years' figures on his business operations demanded by the commission.

$3.25 A TON PROFIT

Mr. Cameron told the commission he paid $7.45 a long ton for Nanaimo-Wellington coal at the mine. The freight to Victoria was one dollar a ton and the price to the consumer was $10.75, or a profit of about $3.25 a ton to dealers.

On some Alberta coals there was a greater spread. On Newcastle "A" the spread was $3.50.

Some customers complained, Mr. Cameron said, that the cost of Vancouver Island coal was too high. Personally, he thought the dealer should receive $4 a ton profit. His firm had lost money for the last two years. There may be too many dealers in Victoria, but any reduction would have to be made at the minehead, he said.

About one in fifteen of Mr. Cameron's customers had discarded coal and installed sawdust, oil, cordwood burners or automatic stokers. Sawdust was about 50 per cent cheaper to operate than coal, he said, but shutdown of mills had affected installations of this type of furnace.

GIVES COST DETAILS

Drumheller coal cost $2.50 at the mine and freight to Victoria $5.50, said the witness. Jasper coal cost $4.50 at the mine and laid down here cost another $4.50. Freight charges on coal from Princeton were $2.50 a ton.

Mr. Cameron figured 10 per cent slack in each carload, but as dealers bought by the long ton and sold short tons this wastage was offset. Alberta coal was cheaper than Vancouver Island coal, he believed, but taking coal contained more heat values. Dealers had no agreement as to retail prices, so far as he knew. He paid no rebates, commissions or discount for cash.

Questioned again to cost of delivering, Mr. Cameron said screening, sacking and weighing cost 40 cents a ton, handling from car to yard 10 cents a ton, and labor in delivering to customers 40 cents a ton, exclusive of all equipment. Gas and oil in deliveries totalled 20 cents a ton, and the total cost of $1.71 handling charges did not include depreciation or salary to himself as managing-director.

Three Reports On Business Inquiry

Majority and Two Minority Documents Embodying Recommendations May Be Submitted to Commons

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Members of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads and Mass Buying to-day were delving into a mountainous heap of exhibits and records, analysing statistics, studying evidence and comparing notes preparatory to writing their report—or reports.

It is believed a majority and two minority reports may emerge from the commission's deliberations. Examination of all the documents will occupy about three weeks, Chairman W. W. Kennedy said.

For some time the commission had has members of its clerical staff indexing evidence and condensing testimony presented by more than 200 witnesses who appeared in the course of its 129 sitting days.

NUMEROUS RECOMMENDATIONS

It is known the commission will make many recommendations, preceded by an analysis of and comment on evidence. Their nature has not been disclosed in any particular, but they will undoubtedly include minimum wage laws, urging more rigid enforcement. They probably will contain recommendations for minimum wages for male workers and maximum working hours. Establishment of codes and supervision of industrial and commercial activity by a statutory body empowered to regulate and possibly vested with the role of referee in the case of disputes are likely recommendations.

Messages To Press Leaders

though unofficial instrument of government. Its influence has direct relation to a nation's destiny. Its freedom is closely associated with the liberties of the people. The standards which it upholds, of public and of private life, are of vital concern to each nation, since they profoundly affect not only present-day tendencies but the future judgment of history.

"In bidding Godspeed to the conference in all its activities, may I add a personal word? My association with South African statesmen—Botha, Smuts, Hertzog and others—I shall always hold in happy memory. In years crowded with momentous events and charged with decisions of supreme significance, in those years and their aftermath, I found leaders of the Union inspired with vision and patriotism not limited to the nation or to the Commonwealth, but broad as humanity."

FROM PREMIER BENNETT

Norman Smith also read the message from Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada, as follows:

"I have asked the chairman of the Canadian section to convey to my friend General Hertzog, your distinguished Prime Minister, and his colleagues, my very best wishes. I met General Hertzog in London in 1930 and realized he had made a truly great contribution to the history of the development of constitutional government within the empire. His colleague, Mr. Havenga, later was leader of the South African delegation at the Imperial Conference in this city, and the memory of his speeches and his wide grasp of economic problems still is fresh in the minds of all who heard him. Of course, General Smuts is almost a mythical figure and enjoys a place of peculiar affection in the hearts of Canadians. As statesman, publicist and philosopher he enjoys a world reputation.

"To all those responsible for the maintenance of government in the Union of South Africa I send the kind regards and best wishes of those who in the Dominion of Canada discharge similar responsibilities.

"I trust the deliberations of the Press Conference will result in constructive measures being taken to prompt the interchange of empire news."

FROM MR. KING

Hon. Frank Carrel of The Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph, a member of the Canadian delegation, read the message from Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, recalling the deep friendship which existed between General Botha, South Africa's first prime minister, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier when the new constitution for South Africa was being considered.

The message said: "This personal exchange of views did much to remove many natural doubts in the mind of General Botha and to make assurance doubly sure as to the successful workings of British institutions. In subsequent developments and definition of the status of the nations of the British Commonwealth, it was also my privilege to co-operate at Imperial Conferences in London with the present prime minister of South Africa, General Hertzog, and with his present colleague the former prime minister, General Smuts.

"In all these negotiations, the parallel of many of the problems with which South Africa and Canada are faced was present to the minds of all. It is a parallel which served to evoke a wider measure of sympathy and understanding."

CLOSER CO-OPERATION

Mr. King's message went on: "It is through sympathy and understanding that the problems of the British Commonwealth and of the world are to be solved, and in the furtherance of sympathy and understanding there is no agency so potent as the press. I send to your conference my best wishes for its efforts to promote closer co-operation between the members of the British Commonwealth and that wider sympathy and understanding among all nations so essential to the world's peace and to the well-being of mankind."

The state banquet followed the opening of the conference yesterday by the Earl of Clarendon, Governor-General of the Union.

Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's

Capetown, South Africa, Feb. 6.—Cheaper cable rates from the United Kingdom and between other parts of the British Empire formed the chief subject of discussion as The Fifth Imperial Press Conference resumed its sessions here to-day. Australia's proposal for appointment of a committee to work to this end was supported by Canada and, before the luncheon adjournment, by Sir Roderick Jones, chairman of Reuter's speaking "as an individual."

The proposal was still under discussion at the adjournment.

Belmore Mackay of the Australian delegation proposed the appointment of a committee to work in London for a prompt review of press and beam wireless rates, and the utilization of the surplus communications capacity through a low deferred press rate which, he suggested, should be no more than a penny a word (two cents) from London to all parts of the empire, and also between other parts of the empire outside of the United Kingdom.

CANADIANS APPROVE

E. Norman Smith of The Ottawa Journal, leader of the Canadian delegation, warmly supported the proposal and the whole conference requested the United Kingdom viewpoint from Sir Roderick.

"Speaking as a single individual," Sir Roderick replied, "I have no hesitation in supporting the proposal." He had not consulted other members of the United Kingdom delegation on the matter, he explained, but added:

"Cheaper rates would be of especial value to Canada at the present time. They are not able to get day by day the volume of news from the British empire through London of which they would like to avail themselves if they had a cheaper rate.

"They have a large pool of news in New York and it is a matter of common economics they should get as much news from that pool as possible, which otherwise they would take from London if rates were cheaper."

CLASH TO-DAY IN NOVA SCOTIA

Canadian Press

Springhill, N.S., Feb. 6.—Violence flared in Springhill between rival unionists to-day even while government officers were conferring with mine workers' leaders in an effort to settle a fourteen-day strike at the Dominion Coal Company's three pits here.

Evidence Given For Hauptmann By Plumber To-day

"Your best recollection is that you didn't notice any board in August, 1934, that was missing.

"No, sir."

Miller also supported Hauptmann's story of a leak in the closet, where Hauptmann said he stored a shoe box given to him by Isidor Fisch.

Hauptmann had testified the shoe box became raincoaked, that he accidentally struck it with a broom, damaging it, so that he discovered it contained money.

This money—$14,600 in Lindbergh ransom notes—was found in Hauptmann's charge after his arrest. He did not count the money at once, he said, and he explained this was because it was wet and had to be dried.

RAIN DOWN PIPE

The defence failed to get into the record testimony from another witness that would have shown, Hauptmann's attorneys said, that Fisch displayed gold notes in May, 1933.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard ruled the defence would first have to prove the gold notes were ransom bills. The witness, Oscar John Buchmann, a taxi driver once employed by Fisch, left the stand after testifying only that Fisch had displayed a large roll of money when paying for a taxi ride in May, 1933.

Edward J. Reilly, chief defence attorney, in answer to objection by Attorney-General David T. Wilentz, declared Buchmann's testimony was offered "for the purpose of showing the sudden affluence of Fisch and his wealth and his display of certain gold-back bills that he had in May, 1933."

Wilentz objected again to "taking from the mouth of a dead man and bringing into this court words which it is impossible to meet, and which he knows it is impossible to meet."

SHOWED BILLS

Reilly replied:

"I say it is material and it is competent.

"Now it is unfortunate that Mr. Fisch died, but still it is part of our case, we contend, to show that Fisch was going around New York exhibition gold bills and that he left part of them with Mr. Hauptmann."

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard ruled at a conference before his bench just before declaring the recess, that the reference would have to show the money Fisch was alleged to have exhibited was actually ransom money.

Otherwise, the court said, Hauptmann's attorneys would have to abandon that line of questioning.

The prosecution immediately brought out that if Hauptmann had handled the ladder and had worn gloves, his fingerprints would not be found.

LOUD-VOICED WITNESS

As this forenoon's session of the trial started Chief Defence Counsel Reilly called as his first witness Sam Streppone, a young man with a very loud voice.

He said he was a radio repairman, living in the Bronx.

A.—I do.

Q.—Who is he?

A.—Isidor Fisch.

Streppone testified he kept records of all work performed. He told of repairing a radio for Isidor Fisch May 10, 1933.

Streppone said the radio was brought to his shop by Fisch and left five days while $3 worth of repair work was performed. Fisch came back to the shop on a Sunday.

Q.—Did Fisch have a package?

A.—Yes.

Attorney-General D. T. Wilentz objected, but the radio man was allowed to go on, describing the package as a shoebox.

DISCHARGED AS CURED

Wilentz took the witness.

Q.—You were adjudged insane, were you not?

A.—Yes, 1928. Discharged, no psychosis.

Reilly took the witness for redirect examination, then asked Streppone if he had not been discharged as cured. The witness answered yes.

Wilentz again questioned him.

Q.—How many times have you been in an institution because of mental disorders?

A.—I'd make it about five times.

A.—Yes.

Q.—And another time you wrote her filthy letters?

A.—Abusive language, yes, sir.

Streppone said he was merely feeling "depressed" on the occasions he was in mental institutions, but that doctors called his ailment "maniac depressive psychosis."

He insisted he was not suffering from any mental ill at the moment.

Streppone was excused after Reilly had adduced that he had been discharged from the Bellevue Hospital in July, 1934, after five days.

FINGERPRINT EVIDENCE

Lieut. Paul Sjostrom, investigator and fingerprint examiner of the state police, was called. Sjostrom told Defence Counsel Fisher he did not have his photographs or reports on the examination of the ladder in court.

Q. How many photographs were taken of the ladder?

A. Sixty-eight.

Q. Does that mean you got only sixty-eight fingerprints?

A. There were approximately 125 finger marks in those photographs.

Q. You didn't find any fingerprints with the state police methods?

A. No.

Q. But after thirteen days, with Dr. Hudson's method, some were found.

A. Several hundred people handled the ladder between March 1 and the time the silver nitrate process of Dr. Hudson was used.

Q. So after thirteen days Sergeant Kelly (F. A. Kelly, fingerprint expert) found some?

A. None of value. There were so many.

LADDER'S TOP SECTION

Fisher brought out from Sjostrom that only ten small pictures had been taken of the entire third section of the ladder. The section was the top part and the state's theory is it was not used by the kidnapper to enter the nursery.

Q. Now you ran down the identities of those fingerprints you found on the ladder?

A. Some.

Q. How many were identified?

A. Eight.

Q. Did at any time you identify the fingerprints of this defendant, Richard Hauptmann?

A. No.

WEARING GLOVES

Prosecutor Wilentz took up the questioning.

Q. If this defendant wore gloves his fingerprints would not show?

A. No.

Q. It has been your experience that criminals frequently wear gloves?

A. Yes.

Fisher intervened to ask:

Q. A mother or a nurse putting a baby to bed doesn't wear gloves?

A. Not in my experience.

Wilentz brought out that handling by several persons would probably obliterate original prints, making them worthless.

EFFECTS OF CHEMICALS

Fisher asked him what effect silver Nitrate had when applied to wood.

Kubler said the lumber turned red, but its color could be restored by washing it with bichloride of mercury solution.

Fisher, after asking about the cleaning solution, inquired: "It tends completely and permanently to eradicate the fingerprints from the ladder, doesn't it?"

"It does."

Wilentz took the witness for a brief cross-examination and elicited the testimony that silver nitrate had been washed from the ladder by Arthur Koehler, wood expert from the U.S. Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis. The purpose of the washing was to prepare the ladder for court.

The witness was then excused.

Trooped Frank A. Kelly of the state police was called next to tell of his methods in examining the interior of the Lindbergh nursery for fingerprints. As a state witness, Kelly told of using a black powder method and failing to find readable prints.

Wilentz objected that the testimony was repititious, but Justice Trenchard allowed Fisher to proceed with his questions.

STEIN ON LEDGE

Kelly said the ransom note lay on the ledge not far from the stein.

Fisher pursued his questioning until Wilentz protested that "this has been gone over time and time again." Justice Trenchard curbed him, and he said he would try to ask questions which had not been answered.

He asked if Kelly had learned from Dr. Hudson that 1,200 photographs had been made of the ladder.

Kelly said he did not know.

Loan Act For Farms Debated

Measure Given First Reading By Commons; Total to Be $90,000,000

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Plans for placing the Canadian farmer in a stronger financial position as embodied in amendments to extend the scope of the Canadian Farm Loan Act await second reading in the House of Commons following a second day of debate yesterday. From all quarters of the House the government's scheme to centralize the operations of the farm loan scheme under federal government direction, make it applicable to all provinces and increase the amount of money available for loans from $15,000,000 to $90,000,000, received approval.

There were a few misgivings, however, as to where the policy of government lending would lead to and a few demands for a lowering of interest rates from 6 to 4 per cent. The latter would mean the government would have to bear the cost of administering the farm loan scheme. The government borrows money at 4 per cent and now lends it at 6 per cent, the 2 per cent margin taking care of administration costs and the risk of loss.

PROPOSAL CONSIDERED

Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, agreed with several opposition members it was a "fair question of debate" as to whether the interest rate should be reduced. He promised the government would give consideration to the proposal. The aim of the plan was to keep contented farmers on the land. Governments as a rule were inefficient money-lenders, but he believed it was better to risk possible losses than to have farmers lose their land and become dependent.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S POSITION

Thomas Reid, Liberal, New Westminster, complained of administration of the loan act in the past on the ground that the character of the applicant for a loan had not been taken into consideration sufficiently. He also said the definition of "farmer" was not wide enough to include small holders of land in the lower Fraser Valley of British Columbia.

Mr. Rhodes said he would not be adverse to considering a change in the act.

WORK AND THRIFT

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former minister of agriculture, spoke. From a practical experience gained over seventy-five years, he warned the government against venturing into the loan business. He said—giving instances from his own life on the prairies—that mortgages did more harm than good to farmers and suggested the homely virtues of thrift and hard work were means by which farmers could extricate themselves from their financial embarrassements.

As a "tide-over policy," the government bill might be worthy, admitted Mr. Motherwell, but it would not cure the agricultural problems of the country.

The Finance Minister said he agreed with many of the sentiments of the former cabinet member, but added that farm credit was practically unknown in Canada to-day and must be restored.

MORATORIUM ACTS

The announcement was made by Mr. Rhodes that steps might be taken to limit or cancel operations of moratorium legislation passed by provincial governments. "It would not be possible," he said, "through the farm loan board, for the Dominion government to wield a big stick, yet I can assure this house we will endeavor, so far as possible, to exercise such reasonable influences as may be open to us, to see that legislation of that kind (moratorium), is, if not removed, at least reduced to a minimum and certainly that it will not have a detrimental effect on the policy of the Dominion government in its desire to assist farmers in the provinces to secure money by way of loan."

Trade Commissioner's Speech Is Investigated

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Duties of Canadian Trade Commissioners were engaging the attention of J. S. Woodsworth when he addressed a question to Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in the Commons yesterday afternoon. He said an Australian newspaper had quoted L. M. Cosgrove, trade commissioner in Australia, as saying: "I'm an imperialist first, a Canadian next."

The Labor member wanted to know if trade commissioners were paid to develop trade or promote imperialism.

Mr. Bennett said he would inquire into the accuracy of the statement.

LOWER RATE ON LOAN ASKED

New Westminster Council May Sell G.T.P. Bonds

Canadian Press

New Westminster, Feb. 6.—The New Westminster City Council will attempt to obtain its annual loan for current financing at a lower rate than 5 per cent, the rate quoted in a letter from the Bank of Montreal.

Mayor F. J. Hume stated New Westminster, considering its financial standing, should be able to borrow as cheaply as either Victoria or Vancouver, which he said had been quoted a lower rate than 5 per cent.

The mayor said it might be possible, with the consent of the provincial government, to borrow the necessary money through sale of Grand Trunk Pacific bonds held in the city's sinking fund. The money would be replaced as civic taxes were received, he added.

Definite action has been suspended pending negotiations with the bank.

New Aid For Drought Areas

Commons Is Told Government's Plans For Prairie Districts

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—The coming spring will probably see operation on at least part of the government's plan for meeting the challenge of prairie drought areas.

To-day the House of Commons had before it outline of a programme which may result in modification of the farming system on 10,000,000 acres. To an attentive House Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, yesterday outlined proposed steps.

Establishment of demonstration areas in drought-stricken sections to indicate the most suitable type of farming, show the best kinds of grasses to plant and prevent the menace of soil-drifting, form a major feature of the scheme. Construction of more than 100 small dams in the three prairie provinces is another.

Under the direct supervision of the Department of Agriculture, the programme would be carried out, said Mr. Weir. There would, however, be created an advisory committee "consisting of some of our most successful ranchers and farmers in these areas and business men."

FOUR-YEAR STUDY

For four years agriculture department experts have been studying conditions, which affect fully 10,000,000 acres in the three provinces. Figures submitted by the minister showed that in 1933 drought affected 11,495,000 acres to such an extent that less than five bushels of grain to the acre was produced.

Plans the government will put in operation, it is claimed, will change the entire landscape in many sections of Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba.

Kernel of the project will be demonstration areas selected in various sections of dried-out districts. Farmers of a dried-out township will be invited to co-operate. If they agree—and those who have worked on the plans say the settlers will be offered such terms they will be glad to agree—then the administration of the township will be taken over and managed as one unit.

COAST LINKS TO BE BUILT

Works Minister Says Department Will Concentrate on Interior Highway Outlets

Vancouver, Feb. 6.—British Columbia Government is concentrating on establishing highways linking the interior with the coast, rather than building innumerable "feeder" lines throughout the province, Hon. P. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works, said yesterday evening.

He was addressing the annual meeting of the British Columbia Automobile Club.

Any statement concerning the direct policy of the government and his department must necessarily come from the floor of the House, Mr. MacPherson said.

The minister declared many were under the impression the province's roads and highways could be maintained and new ones built by applying the gasoline tax and license fees to that purpose only. These combined revenues, less the grants to municipalities, fell $600,000 short of paying the interest charges on money borrowed for highway construction, he explained.

BRIDGE WANTED

Preceding Mr. MacPherson, Mayor G. G. McGeer declared connecting highway lines between the interior and the coast must be built at any cost, and suggested construction of a First Narrows bridge here and a road to Garibaldi Park as a means of increasing tourist travel in the province.

MOTION RULED OUT OF ORDER

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—An amendment by Liberal Leader Mackenzie King to a motion to go into supply yesterday afternoon was ruled out of order by the Speaker of the House of Commons. The amendment, asking priority be given to estimates of the Labor Department so that unemployment conditions and distress might be discussed at once, would have amounted to a want-of-confidence motion.

GENIUS IS FREE OF NAZI LAW

Associated Press

Berlin, Feb. 6.—Nazidom's judicially minded were at odds to-day over the question of sterilization as applied to a genius—a tainted genius.

The authorities were unable to reach unanimity of opinion in a case of a young music student who is said to be brilliantly gifted.

The student was certified as suffering from acute melancholia and was proposed for sterilization under the present law after being discharged from a Frankfort sanitarium as "partially cured."

On the testimony given by expert biologists before the Frankfort-on-Main hereditary court, the court ruled the young man's genius predominated over his mental disability and the former in all likelihood would be preponderant in any possible offspring.

The decision was that sterilization was not advisable.

Detroit, Feb. 6.—Another polar bear became a rug to-day at the Detroit Zoological Gardens, all because Cinci, feminine member of the bear colony, became too shrewish over a cake of ice.

It was one of those fatal "triangle affairs," said head keeper Theodore Schroder, started when Cinci picked herself a choice cake of ice in which to take her afternoon snooze. No sooner was she settled, however, than along came Igloo, a burly male, and playfully cuffed her to the middle of the pool. Cinci's boy friend, Arcturus, took it up and clambered up to teach Igloo his manners. He was not bear enough to do it though, and Igloo was on top when Cinci rushed into the braw to aid her mate.

Caught in the middle of a ton or more of fighting polar bear fury, she was lassoed by attendants and pulled to safety, but too late. She died from her wounds.

UNIFICATION OF RAILS TOPIC

and without hardship to those now dependent on railway employment.

"Nothing could be more distressing to me than to see more added to the tragic army of the unemployed and, within my power, I pledge myself solemnly to do what I can to prevent such a development," Mr. Beatty declared, adding the following statement: "It is, indeed, my hope and belief that the methods which I suggest will operate to prevent an even more disastrous period of low wages and unemployment than that through which we are passing."

TO DIVIDE NET EARNINGS

Mr. Beatty answered a criticism that he had suggested that restoration of Canadian Pacific dividends should be the first charge on promised savings.

"I have never made any such suggestion," he said. "It would be ridiculous. I have recommended a bargain between two groups of owners. On the terms of that bargain and the general condition of business would depend what the owners of the Canadian Pacific Railway would receive."

"What I have suggested, and suggest to-day," he said, "is that we should plan to divide the net earnings of the unified properties to give to each group of owners the net earnings which would have resulted if each had operated its own railway, together with a fair share of the savings resulting from unification."

Mr. Beatty said that obviously the shareholders of the Canadian Pacific would have to concede to the government at least one half of the gain resulting from unified management. "Those who have said the Canadian Pacific would claim the lion's share have either misunderstood my proposals or purposely misrepresented it," he declared.

COST OF TRANSPORTATION

Mr. Beatty dealt at length with other phases of his unification plan. On the matter of cost of railway transportation to the people of Canada, he pointed out it had not been as cheap as it had seemed to be for, while freight rates in Canada were "lower than in countries which compete with us for markets abroad," the full advantage of these low rates had not been retained. In 1928, he said cost of rail transportation to the people was $356,000,000. Of that, however, only $262,000,000 represented the traffic earnings of the two railways, the remainder, $96,000,000, being the amount by which the Canadian National failed to meet its obligations.

Reduced wages to meet rail losses was no solution, Mr. Beatty said. While rail and other wages were out of line with the return for farm labor, he denied they were too high and looked for a correction of the discrepancy to increased farm earnings rather than lowering of the rail workers' standard of living.

NO HIGHER RATES

Neither did he believe the solution was to be found in increased freight rates, which, he said, would be damaging to the national interest.

"For my part," he said, "I should regret to see this tried until everything possible were done to eliminate transportation waste."

Reviewing events which led to the present financial condition, Mr. said: "Do you realize that even if our earnings improved so that all charges due to the public by both roads were earned, and reasonable dividends paid to Canadian Pacific shareholders, there would still be a waste of over $75,000,000 a year due to maintaining duplicate services, services which could be abolished? Do you, in a word wish to continue to pay more than you need, for transportation because someone says that at some distant date you may be prosperous that you can stand this unnecessary cost?"

CANADA'S TARIFF

Dealing with tariff matters, Mr. Beatty called for a new angle in consideration of the whole question based on a scientific, non-political analysis of its effect on the total income and purchasing power of the Canadian people. It was a national, economic matter affecting the life and pocketbook of every inhabitant of the country. As it affected this purchasing power, it had a direct effect on the earning power of the railways and a policy that was good for Canada would also be advantageous for both the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

"I am neither a believer in protection with no limit nor free trade," he said. "I do not believe that either of these plans would tend to what I desire — which is the maximum of national wealth fairly distributed among the citizens of Canada.

"A tariff which will add most to our wealth must be one which will keep our internal and external trade combined at the maximum."

Mr. Beatty did not believe in the attitude that the tariff is sacrosanct. "I am not certain there should not be some revision of our policy," he said. "We have never at any time attempted the preparation of a tariff balance sheet, an analysis of the effect of the Canadian people. Such an analysis might reveal cases in which we have tried to protect industries of a type not advantageous for the country as a whole, and that the burden thus placed on the consumer and the check given to our ability to purchase goods from those who are willing to buy from us have outweighed the advantages to investors and the employment provided for our workers."

Speaking of farming, Mr. Beatty recommended attention to government agriculturists' advice, which would possibly be an increase in the area sown to feed grains rather than to wheat, but stressed the importance of remembering "our great permanent market in Great Britain should we find temporary outlets to the United States barred.

"I would say without hesitation that the capital invested in the farms of this country must receive returns if any important block of capital is to be regarded as safe from risk, and that either labor cannot hope for the permanence of level of real wages which is too high above the earning of labor on the land," he said.

He did not, he said, as yet see clearly the road along which private business could move to aid agriculture, but expressed his unswerving confidence that the road would be found and that it was being eagerly sought to-day.

WHAT ABOUT ARTICLE 21?

IN SPITE OF PERSISTENT PROTESTS from the Canadian government and Canadian officials in London, British Timber Distributors Limited will buy from Soviet Russia this year 400,000 standards of lumber, compared with 350,000 standards last year. As a standard is practically 2,000 feet board measurement, this means that the increase in the new contract over the last one will be 100,000,000 feet—making a total of 800,000,000 feet. Thus the average of British imports of timber from Russia over the last few years will be maintained. The new contract, incidentally, will give Russia about one-fifth of Britain's annual lumber business, the greater part of the rest of her 4,000,000,000 feet requirements coming from other northern European countries.

Not only are the sales to be larger by 50,000 standards than they were in 1934, however, but the famous "fall clause," abrogated by the British Board of Trade last year, will be permitted to operate this year. It is this clause to which Canadians strongly object and they are supported by one of the clauses in the Canada-United Kingdom pact of 1932. This means that if, after the contract has been entered into with the Soviet exporters, say, for delivery between May and October, and the value of lumber falls, the Russians reserve to themselves the right to give the British importers the benefit. This is not Canada's practice. Hence, one of the difficulties which Canada's lumber industry is up against!

British Columbia's lumber business with the United Kingdom has increased very substantially—last year's exports set a new high mark—but our exporters have had to fight strenuously for every bit of it and use every means in their power to wear down objections and deep-rooted prejudices. They are, of course, up against the handicap of the cost of the long haul. At the same time, Canada and Great Britain entered into an agreement at the Imperial Economic Conference in 1932 which not only gives this country a preference in the United Kingdom market in respect of lumber, but also protects the Dominion against unfair competition from foreign countries. This is contained in Article 21, which reads as follows:

> This agreement is made on the express condition that, if either government is satisfied that any preference hereby granted in respect of any particular class of commodities are likely to be frustrated in whole or in part by reason of the creation or maintenance directly or indirectly of prices for such class of commodities through state action on the part of any foreign country, that government hereby declares that it will exercise the powers which it now has or will hereafter take to prohibit the entry from such foreign country directly or indirectly of such commodities into its country for such time as may be necessary to make effective and to maintain the preferences hereby granted by it.

Last year's successful protest was based on the provisions contained in the Article we have quoted. The Dominion government several weeks ago repeated the protest as soon as the report reached it that a larger contract between British Timber Distributors Limited and Russian exporters was being negotiated. Hence, unless the British Board of Trade, which has to put its stamp of approval on the contract, follows its precedent of last year, Canada's lumber business, and especially that of British Columbia, will receive a set-back.

A news dispatch from London to-day quotes The Financial News as saying that it doubts if the Board of Trade, even if it may so desire, will be able to reduce the amount of the contract or impose the removal of the "fall clause"—because, since Canada's successful protest of last year, a new Anglo-Russian trade treaty has been signed.

This lumber controversy brings once again into relief the wisdom or unwisdom of the agreements entered into at the Ottawa conference in 1932. Undoubtedly, as far as Canada is concerned, they have helped to increase this Dominion's trade with the rest of the British countries. But as Mr. Mackenzie King, leader of the opposition in the House of Commons at Ottawa, pointed out in his speech the other day, they have stood in the way of reciprocity with the neighboring republic, and "before we see the consummation of a trade agreement between Canada and the United States there will have to be modifications of the empire agreements."

Before the tariff war which the United States, under a Republican government, started a few years ago, and in which Canada, under Mr. Bennett's government, promptly joined, the bulk of Canada's lumber went to the neighboring republic. Of this export trade, of course, British Columbia enjoyed the lion's share. That market now, however, is almost closed; but if a new trade deal between Ottawa and Washington shall be negotiated, it may be possible for our lumber exporters to contemplate the new Anglo-Russian timber deal with less concern than at present.

A GREAT HIGHWAY

ONE OF THE GREATEST PUBLIC works projects ever devised for the development of tourist travel is that which eventually will link Alaska with Argentina with a smooth, up-to-date motor highway. This link—it can be called a link of peace—between the two American continents will, when completed, be 15,000 miles long. Of this length some 8,500 miles will lie north of the Panama Canal. Already, of course, British Columbia motorists can commence the southward journey at Hazleton and travel all the way to Mexico City.

Slowly but steadily, therefore, this vast ribbon of highway is taking practical shape; and, incidentally, not the least striking thing about it is the fact that it is coming into being for a different set of reasons from any of the famous highways of the old days. The old roads were strictly utilitarian, with a strong military tinge. Those far-flung roads that tied the Roman empire together were laid out, first and foremost, to provide easy passage for the Roman legions. Their secondary purpose was to promote the flow of commerce. No one traveled along them for pleasure; any Roman who had suggested that a road be built through forest, mountain, and desert simply to enable idle folk to travel to places where necessity did not call them would have been looked upon as insane.

So it has been with nearly all the international highways since. But this Alaska-British Columbia-Pan-American highway is something different. It is not to be a military road in any sense of the word. It will not come into being because of the demands of commerce. Useful as the motor truck is, it is hard to imagine it supplanting the steamship on the long haul from South America to New York. It is being built, in other words, as a luxury—a tribute to the leisure and mobility which enable modern man to wander to far places for his private edification. In that sense it is a symbol of a new order of human existence.

THIS IS 1935, NOT 1800

WHEN A COMMITTEE OF THE NEW York State Legislature met recently to hear arguments about the pending child labor amendment to the United States constitution, a number of women spoke in opposition to the law.

Among them was a lady representing the New York State Economic Council, an organization of employers; and this lady, after declaring that "young people have a God-given right to toil" and that the amendment would "kill the spirit of youth," declared herself as follows:

> Abraham Lincoln would not have been the great Lincoln we know if he had been handicapped by a child labor amendment.

The news dispatch describing this affair relates that the women present applauded warmly. We are not told, of course, whether they would permit children of their own—if they had any—to go out to work at, say, ten or twelve years of age.

Perhaps, says one United States commentator, some of us have had the wrong slant on things. Perhaps the man who hires children to work in factories, in sweatshops and elsewhere is really a public benefactor, after all; and then goes on: "He's hard at work developing new Lincolns for us and, incidentally, saving himself the expense of hiring adult wage-earners!

LIGHT TO STOP WARFARE

A STRANGE STORY CAME FROM Paris recently telling the world that France's new "light-ray" guns could make any attack harmless. We are told that instead of shells these guns emit blinding rays of light, and by the use of them, it is suggested, air attacks could be made impossible, infantry could be blinded as they left the trenches, policemen could stop rioters, and, to cap it all, the thickest London fog could be made non-effective.

It appears that experiments have been carried out by the inventors before French military and air authorities. One of the inventors said that during recent experiments a "pistol" of only 150,000 candle-power was turned on dancers at a country fete. The dancers immediately stopped, some falling to the ground and others screaming—tough on the dancers! When the rays were diverted, however, the dancers immediately recovered and went on with their festivities.

In the last war, of course, the best means of protecting towns and cities from attack from the air was to clothe them in complete darkness. Now we apparently are waking up to the fact that guns emitting intense light rays will prevent airmen from carrying out their attacks. In other words, motor-lorries carrying guns, say, capable of emitting 5,000,000 candle-power rays could render airmen absolutely helpless.

If this French invention "holds water" it would appear that France need not worry very much whether Germany comes into the orbit of the new international pacts or not. Still, it will not do to scoff at the "light-ray" gun. Scientific development these days is running in high gear.

We are hearing a great deal these days about the long-waited-for decision of the Supreme Court of the United States on the famous "gold clause." But what a lot of us would like to handle is a little gold in our own claws.

At no time since the Peace of Versailles was signed has the prestige of the League stood so high. There is a positive sentiment in favor of peace. There is a feeling abroad for co-operation. MEMORIES

AT THE Capitol Theatre this week they showed some pictures of old-time movie favorites in their prime. They looked pretty awful, grimacing and gesticulating there in a grisly silence. They made you feel rather sheepish when you realized that they looked all right to you twenty years ago and less. The fat ladies with the vast figures seem preposterous enough, but they used to have it in the old days. People used to pay to see their double chins, and fellows used to fall in love with them. We used to laugh then, too, at the most absurd comedians and if a custard pie hit some fellow in the face that was a subtle piece of humor.

Yes, but there is a more solemn thought behind all this. Did you ever think, as you watched the gibberings and gyrations of the ancient movie folk, that the present ones will appear equally ridiculous in twenty years? People then will sit and rock with obscene laughter at the most moving moments in our current films. They will split their sides at Garbo's goggling and Joan Crawford's goldfish eyes. They will probably roll in the aisles at the tragic face of Mr. Gary Cooper and the innumerable deaths and heroisms of Mr. Frederic March.

That is bad enough, but it won't stop with the movie folk. Twenty years from now the public will regard all of us as absurd. They will rock with obscene laughter at the goings-on of this whole generation. If you are fortunate enough to be remembered at all, you will undoubtedly be an elderly buffoon to your grandchildren. You will look quite as outlandish and quite as stupid as the worst of the old-time movie heroes and heroines. Next time you laugh at the movie memories remember that. You will be a side-splitting memory yourself shortly.

CONSISTENCY

ONE OF THE most frequent charges leveled against those who think by those who don't—the latter being about a hundred to one of the former—is that thinkers are constantly shifting their position and often appear to be going in every direction at the same time. Charles A. Beard, the eminent historian, scholar and thinker, has lately answered this allegation in a notable letter to The New Republic, of New York.

"What you do," he says, "is to frame a general picture of the society toward which we appear to be tending, a society on the whole desirable if certain values may be preserved, and then you propose to discuss current affairs with reference to that posited thesis. This acquits you of the charge that you are going in every direction at the same time and of the charge that you assume omniscience with respect to every detail. There is no way of proving that your position or my position or any other position involving an interpretation of history is true. If everyone who writes or speaks would try to distinguish between what he knows and can prove and what he just loves, hopes and longs for, the intellectual climate would be cleared of a lot of confusing fog. But most of us want to play the role of little gods and to imagine ourselves 100 per cent right all the time, on every point everywhere."

This is a profound truth. If you will apply it to our little local political scene in Canada and even in British Columbia you will see how it works out. Ninety per cent of our politicians, speakers, journalists, writers of letters-to-the-editor, are not seeking new light, even if they think they are. Their minds are utterly closed to new ideas, even though they think they are grasping after knowledge. All their investigations, all the information they can get, is devoted not to the discovery of truth but to the confirmation of their own notions.

The human mind is well made for such a process. With devilish cunning it can take any new fact and twist it about to fit in with a fixed set of ideas and, without the least effort, quite unconsciously, it can reject any new information which crowds or inconvenences the existing inhabitants of the mind. They are walled up and protected from every side.

Worst of all is the man with a single new idea. Like the new convert to a religious dogma he is the most intolerant of all converts to any other dogma. Your new Conservative, Liberal or C.C.F.er is always far more prejudiced, far less sensible to reason than your old one, who has had time to see that no party is always right, that no policy ever works out as you expect.

But the open-minded man, who is glad to accept truth wherever and however he can get it, is always accused of being inconsistent. Naturally he must be. History and the truth about human affairs are the most inconsistent things imaginable. Those who try to follow them are likely to appear inconsistent also. Distrust, therefore, the man who is always positive, who is always consistent, who can boast that he has never changed his mind, who is proud that he still follows Gladstone or Sir John Macdonald. He was probably right once. If so, he is certainly wrong now.

OLD CUSTOM GONE

THERE was a touching little piece in the paper the other night, introduced by a rhyme, about the page boys over in the Legislature. It said the page boys, after ten years, were going to get new uniforms this session because Mr. Speaker Perry had found that the old ones were all patched and shiny. It said the boys were being neatly measured for the new uniforms so that, for the first time, the uniforms would fit.

This seems a pity. I mean the old custom which always prevailed in the past was so much more quaint. The old custom was to leave the uniforms alone and to choose page boys who would fit them. If you didn't fit a uniform, you didn't get a job. If you fitted, you were a page automatically, without question, though it wouldn't do you any harm, of course, if your Uncle Elmer was president of a ward Liberal or Conservative association out in Beaumaint or Saanich, as the case might be. That helped to stretch the uniform a little if necessary.

This fitting of page boys into uniforms was a kind of immemorial rite across James Bay, one of those little historical touches of the picturesque which keep politics from becoming too utterly dull and dreary. It was exactly like those other little touches of the pleasantly ridiculous like the opening splendors of the House, the gold braid, the cocked hats, the solemn resolution that no one but the King's Printer must presume to print the proceedings of the assembly, as if anyone would, the Speaker's absurd three-cornered hat, which is fitted, one may add, to the Speaker and not the Speaker to it, so that the size of Speakers' heads is not standardized.

PRECOCIOUS IDEAS

YES, THE old way was better. I mean, every legislature in the world could fit uniforms to page boys. Only this capital, daring to be original, daring to be its own odd self, would go to the greater effort of fitting page boys into uniforms.

A page boy, by the way, is apt to learn many grisly things which are usually hidden from the young. To be placed over there in the Legislature at a tender age is a disillusioning experience to the immature mind. It is apt to discover that politics in operation aren't in the least like politics in the school books and that politicians aren't half so good as the teacher paints them or half as bad as Dad says they are when he can't get a government job.

A page boy is apt to learn all sorts of strange facts that the public isn't supposed to know. He knows, for example, that Mr. Hart can't quite lose his original Irish brogue and still says "annie" for "any" and "twinty" for "twenty" and is, in addition, the most agreeable gentleman in politics. He knows that Mr. McGeer cannot make a speech or conduct a conversation unless he has two or three fifty-cent pieces to pass from one hand to the other and back again, but no further.

He knows that Premier Pattullo writes an odd hand, the letters sloping backwards, like a woman's, in curious contrast to his disposition, while Mr. Pooley's writing is minute, perfect and utterly feminine, though Mr. Pooley is the most seasoned outdoor man in the House.

He knows that Mr. Savage, of Cowichan, always wraps his tobacco in a piece of tissue paper before placing it in his pipe and that Mr. Manson, of Omineca, chews smoking tobacco by preference. And a great many other things very enlightening for the young.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WINTER PICTURE

And now there are no leaves, now there are only
Bare branches shaking in the whistling gale;
Night's shades come early and the sky is lonely,
A strange, dark vault, a strange Earth, still and pale.
The storm-swept sky is sad, but it remembers
The glow of summer and the touch of wings;
Not all the bitter rage which is December's
In symbols veiled in snow and locked in ice,
In many a secret, beautiful device.
Within this winter picture, bleak and heavy,
Old, subtle Nature hides her finest story.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

STRANGEST OF ALL

The world is filled with curious things,
As Ripley says: "Believe it or not!"
A snail that runs, a frog that sings,
And ice that keeps the kettle hot;
A chicken with a rabbit's ears,
Upset the universal plan;
But stranger than all these appear
An arrogant, conceited man.

At freaks of nature jarred and glazed
On dusty laboratory shelves
I've stared, the while the thought has passed:
Poor things, they could not help themselves!
Some slight mischance brought them about
When generation first began;
But harder this to figure out:
An arrogant, conceited man.

So much there is to learn and know,
So vast the world and man so small,
How can a mortal beautiful grow
And act as if he knows it all?
Whatever be his place or post,
Whatever curious freaks I mean,
This creature puzzles me the most:

ORIENTALS

To the Editor:—F. E. Winch, in his "reply," carefully refrains from answering all but one of the points raised by me.

As regards that one point, there is nothing in the quotations he made in a previous letter suggesting any connection between Count Okuma's ideas and those of the author of the "imperialistic pronouncement" of 1916. They appear to be entirely distinct and unrelated schemes.

Mr. Winch's reference to Mr. Bennett's purchase of the Conservative Party at an extremely exorbitant figure, is no answer to my suggestion that the Anti-Oriental Penetration League of B.C. would be well advised to agitate for the compulsory publication of all party campaign funds.

He has produced no proof of the existence of the "Oriental penetration revolving fund," nor has he attempted to substantiate, or alternately, withdraw, his insinuation that the C.C.F. has received financial assistance from this possibly mythical fund. Instead he adds to his offence by insinuating that Mr. Woodsworth, Professor Angus and Elsie Brock advocate a policy which they know will result in driving the white race from B.C.

When I ask Mr. Winch the meaning of one of his statements he replies that he does not intend to answer riddles. I contend that the statement in question was a riddle and assumed that as Mr. Winch had propounded it he would be able to give the answer. Apparently he has forgotten it or never knew it, so the answer must remain an insoluble mystery.

Japanese statesmen are as shrewd as any in the world and they know that any attempt to conquer either North or South America would bring both the U.S.A. and the British Empire into the field against them.

Furthermore, it is inconceivable that any Japanese government would attempt to carry out such absurdly quixotic schemes, leaving an undefeated Russia in its rear. And an attempt to dispose of that country first would absorb Japan's utmost energies for a very considerable time, and even if successful—and more than a very limited success is improbable—she would be in no condition to attempt the conquest of North or South America for a generation or two, if ever. While if defeated, the problem of her custom population would, under modern conditions of warfare, be solved for generations to come, or, at all events, until her people had time to realize that this problem is better met by birth control than by territorial expansion.

In addition, recent events make it clear that whatever may have been the case in 1907 and 1908, the eyes

Tourist Praise And Criticism

"Street Signs Still For Left Hand Driving," "Cyclists Hog Road," "Customs Confiscated Liquor," "Gasoline Too High," "Liquor Prices Out of All Reason," Visitors Say

Following are extracts from questionnaires sent to summer visitors to Victoria, by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau:

"Condition of roads excellent with possible exception of stretch on north end of island."

"People on bicycles should stay more on side of road and not ride three or four abreast so motorists cannot pass."

"We had decided to go to Forbes Landing, but decided we could endure no more shaking over the roads."

"Streets very poorly marked."

"Fishing attracted us, but the prices we had to pay for fishing licenses seemed excessive."

"We found the roads on the northern end of the highway pretty rough and broke a spring—our only mishap on a 5,000-mile trip."

"With regard to roadside advertising thumbs down on all rock doubling."

"Want to come again, stay longer and see more."

"Do not take the half-day from the store clerk, but relate so tourists do not miss shopping."

"It was the best motor trip we have ever taken."

"Our stay in Victoria left a lasting impression of a most pleasing nature."

"Particularly delighted with the attitude of shop people to strangers—kind and considerate."

"Great scenic beauty, tranquillity of the place, absence of much traffic and absence of crowds of tourists appealed to us."

"I liked especially the courtesy of salespeople in your stores."

"We have never seen such a series of beautiful gardens as you have around Victoria."

"We were attracted by the mode of life and near-virgin territory."

"Mr. Thornley of Seattle spreads the good news of the Pacific Northwest far and wide in southern California. More like him would be a good investment."

"We would not have missed this part of our trip for anything."

"After we had been sightseeing we did not know what to do with ourselves. Perhaps our stay would have been longer if we had found some kind of amusement."

"Trust everything will be done to prevent denuding the forest, which I hear is contemplated at Sproat Lake."

"Victoria's street signs seem to be placed for left-hand driving."

"The air of restfulness and English atmosphere was interesting."

"We started for Courtenay, Comox and Campbell River points, but the roads turned us back in disgust at Nanaimo."

"Fine people in Victoria."

"We have traveled very extensively, but know of no better place than Vancouver Island."

"The parks attracted us to the island."

"The condition of the highway from Victoria to Nanaimo is such we feel we would not like to take it again or any part of it, yet the scenery is beautiful."

"Your officials were high-class gentlemen."

"Specially pleased with Butchart's Gardens."

"Wider road on Malahat drive with new turnouts is needed."

"Thought the highways were in exceptionally good condition."

"Established custom of closing everything on Sunday caused us to take home money we would have spent."

"Prices high in Victoria. Everything else O.K."

"I am a veteran of the world war. The Canadian veterans treated me royal."

"Gasoline too high. Liquor prices out of all reason compared with U.S. prices for same liquor. You never feel you are being overcharged as you do in California. You should advertise the island as 'a bit of North America entirely different.' Keep your atmosphere and individuality. You sure do have it, and that is what attracts me."

Weddings

GEORGESON—MEREDITH-JONES

A quiet wedding was celebrated on Saturday afternoon, February 2, at St. Mary's Church, Metchosin, when Rev. H. M. Bolton united in marriage Gwynneth, only daughter of Major and Mrs. H. D. Meredith-Jones, and granddaughter of Mrs. G. F. Brown, Nantwich, England; and William Alan Georgeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Georgeson, Albert Head, and grandson of Judge T. D. Cumberland, LL.D. and Mrs. Cumberland, of Brandon and Victoria.

The bride was given away by her father, and Miss Eileen Money, Victoria, acted as bridesmaid. The groom was supported by his brother, T. C. Georgeson. The bride wore a smart brown traveling costume, brown hat, and accessories to match, with a corsage of gardenias.

A reception was held at "Rockoaks," Metchosin, the home of the bride's parents, where only immediate relatives were present. After the reception Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Georgeson left for Courtenay.

To Have The Best Cough Remedy, Mix It At Home

Quicker Relief. Big Saving! So Easy! No Cooking!

This famous recipe is used by millions of housewives, because there is no other way to obtain such a dependable, effective cough remedy. It's so simple to mix—a child could do it.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat and bronchial membranes.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, far superior to anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be amazed by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, lasting relief. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and clears the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Club Enjoys Analysis Of Masefield's Poems

Mrs. D. M. Duncan Describes Poet Laureate's Life and Works Before Women's Canadian Club; High School Orchestra Plays

The writings of John Masefield, Poet Laureate, were analyzed in the thoughtful and interesting review of his life and works given by Mrs. D. N. Duncan, principal of St. Margaret's School, before the Women's Canadian Club yesterday afternoon.

ESSENTIALLY ENGLISH

Describing Masefield as an essentially English poet, Mrs. Duncan quoted from many of his poems to illustrate her point that he covered the whole field of lyric, narrative and dramatic poetry, dealt with conditions of men and their occupations, the sea and the countryside, and upon the metaphysical in his writings.

Mrs. Duncan prefaced her remarks with a reference to the discussion which arose over the whole position of poet laureate at the time of the appointment of the late Dr. Robert Bridges, Masefield's predecessor. The controversy was also revived at the time of Masefield's appointment in 1930 to an office which some say can be traced to Chaucer's time, others declaring it was first instituted 200 years ago.

She briefly sketched the history of the poet laureateship and its emoluments and the duties which it involved. The composition of a yearly ode to the reigning sovereign was among the duties, and the sycophantic efforts of some of the holders of the office brought it into ridicule for many years, until the early part of the nineteenth century when it began to be looked upon rather as a recognition of past achievement than as an earnest of efforts to come.

PICTURESQUE OFFICE

The speaker expressed the opinion that it would be a pity to abolish this picturesque office, especially at this time when so many poets have shown their fitness to merit the official recognition this bestowed.

Mrs. Duncan sketched Masefield's life and his rather difficult childhood. At thirteen years of age he went to sea and served before the mast, enduring all that this involves. After leaving the sea he led a precarious life as a free-lance journalist in England and the United States, and in the Great War served with a hospital unit on the various fronts. All of these experiences have contributed to the color of his poetry.

Poetry, prose, literary criticism and the spoken drama all have come within the orbit of his pen, Mrs. Duncan noted. Masefield is essentially the teller of tales, and a seeker after the spiritual beauty which lies hidden beneath the most unpromising exterior and environment.

She read a number of excerpts from his poems to show the contrasting strength and weakness of his writings. His people are types rather than living beings; the emotional passages often misfire so definitely as to excite laughter, yet on the other hand there is a deep sincerity of purpose and a beauty of endeavor, she pointed out in her analysis of his style.

CHAMPION OF UNDER DOG

Masefield's own early life and struggles are reflected in his championship of the under dog, the defeated, as exemplified in his poems, "Dauber" and "Conquered." They bore out his belief that the true empire of man is not over land or over sea, but over his own soul, she observed.

An inadequacy of the love element mark the narrative poems of Masefield, but in his lyric poems he writes with charming delicacy on this theme, the speaker noted, quoting several poems in illustration.

Miss Eugene Perry moved the vote of thanks, in endorsing which the president, Mrs. Alfred Carmichael, presented Mrs. Duncan with an armful of daffodils.

The musical part of the programme was unusually interesting yesterday, the Victoria High School Orchestra, under Mr. Alfred Prescott, playing selections from "The Bohemian Girl" and "Il Trovatore," which received well-merited and prolonged applause. The audience heartily endorsed Mrs. Carmichael's little speech of thanks, in which she complimented both the conductor and the players upon their performance, and the High School upon such a valuable asset to its cultural life.

C.P.R. TENNIS CLUB'S DANCE

The annual dance of the C.P.R. Tennis Club will be held to-morrow evening in the K. of C. Hall. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m., and music will be supplied by a well-known orchestra.

Mr. George Foret is head of the general committee, and tickets may be obtained from him or members of the club. The proceeds will go towards the club's funds.

Mrs. Lennox Irving and her sister, Mrs. J. H. Carswell of Ottawa, have returned to Victoria from Vancouver, where they went to attend the performances of the Russian Ballet. Mrs. Carswell had planned to continue her journey from Vancouver to her home in the east, but on account of the uncertainty of the weather she is going to remain on in Victoria with Colonel and Mrs. Lennox Irving for a few weeks longer. Colonel and Mrs. Irving have as their guests their nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McAllister of Vancouver, who will spend a few days here with them.

Get rid of the purgative habit once and for all!

● A great many people simply must 'take something' to overcome the constipating effects of too much to eat and drink, the wrong kind of food, hurried meals and too little exercise. But the kind of help you depend upon means a lot to your health.

Actually millions of men and women have, in the last sixty-two years, freed themselves from the purgative habit by taking Eno's "Fruit Salt". The trouble with harsh mineral salts, drastic purgatives and similar makeshifts, is that they do not reach the root of the trouble. If taken regularly the dose must be steadily increased. Eventually they aggravate and intensify the very condition they are supposed to alleviate.

Eno's "Fruit Salt" is one safe aid to natural elimination which doctors take themselves and recommend to others. It is the gentle, pleasant way to regularity. A dash of Eno in a glass of water makes a refreshing, effervescing drink. It sweetens the stomach, sharpens the appetite, helps digestion, clears the intestines of poisonous, trouble-breeding waste, helps to purify the blood-stream and tones up the whole system. Eno doesn't gripe, doesn't nauseate—and you never have to increase the dose.

Get a bottle of Eno from your druggist now. The first refreshing draught will put you on the road to freedom from the purgative habit, and freedom from constipation, the source of many minor and major ailments. And, remember, there isn't an atom of harshness or harm in a whole carload of Eno's "Fruit Salt".

I.O.D.E. Chapters Review Year of Achievement

Gonzales Chapter Re-elects Mrs. W. C. Nichol as Regent; Miss Hilda Margetts Succeeds Mrs. H. G. Bolt as Regent of Robert Burns McMicking Chapter; Splendid Reports

The first hint of spring with its burgeoning brings in its train the annual meetings of the various primary chapters of the I.O.D.E., when the past year's activities are reviewed and the rebirth of effort is reflected in plans for the new year, faced with fresh stimulus. Yesterday, two of the chapters, Gonzales Chapter and Robert Burns McMicking Chapter, held their annual meetings, the reports showing a splendid record of achievement.

GONZALES CHAPTER

Gonzales Chapter, which met at the home of the first vice-regent, Mrs. B. H. Tyrwhitt-Drake, unanimously re-elected Mrs. W. C. Nichol, who is now in the east, to the office of regent.

Other officers chosen were: First vice-regent, Mrs. Drake; second vice-regents, Mrs. G. Denbigh, Mrs. A. Chisholm; educational secretary, Mrs. P. P. Curtis; Echoes secretary, Miss Clearihue; treasurer, Miss Pitts; standard-bearer, Mrs. Guy Ford; councillors, Mrs. W. Bell, Mrs. Guillod, Mrs. Dexter, Mrs. Juston Fisher, Mrs. Stuart Robertson, Mrs. C. Guard, Mrs. J. L. Dunlop, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Gordon Hunter, Mrs. Tadman and Miss N. Macdonald.

ASSIST MANY CAUSES

Mrs. A. Chisholm, the secretary, recorded the receipt of $819.14 during the year, and $550.80 as expenditures. There was $67.90 in the hospital account, with a balance in the bank of $59.34. Financial assistance had been given to the Girl Guides, Sea Cadets, secondary education, Fleming Ward of the Jubilee Hospital, Solarium, Travelers' Aid, upkeep of soldiers' graves, child welfare and Christmas hampers for soldiers' families. Special grants had been made to the Mary Croft memorial fund, educational work among isolated families, and the X-ray equipment for the Solarium.

A silver tea had been held at the home of Mrs. Nichol, when the garments for the child welfare fund had been on display, and a musicale had been held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Hunter. A garden tea had been held at the home of Mrs. Curtis Sampson and a bridge luncheon at the home of Mrs. Stuart Robertson. The empire study meetings had been held at the home of the regent.

EDUCATIONAL WORK

Mrs. P. P. Curtis read the secondary educational report and to this fund the sum of $120 was subscribed. The sum of $5 was voted to the isolated families' fund, through which children are able to take the correspondence course sent out by the Department of Education. Owing to the chapter's depleted exchequer, no new libraries or additions to the already existing libraries were ordered from headquarters during the past year, but at the suggestion of one of the members, appeal was made for used children's books. So generous was the response that large packages were sent to all the isolated schools in which the chapter is interested.

Thirty-one subscriptions had been sent for Echoes magazine Miss Clearihue reported, and the magazine had been sent regularly to the Jubilee Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital, Monterey, East Sooke, Malvern House and Pavilion Schools and to the Red Cross Workshop.

BOOKS FOR PATIENTS

Miss Pitts reported that the library committee had visited the Jubilee Hospital each week and loaned over 4,000 books to patients. There are now 1,100 books catalogued, and during the year gifts from Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Angus, Mr. C. F. Todd and Miss Tolmie, totaling 200 books, had been gratefully received for the collection.

The child welfare report, prepared by Mrs. H. Davis, showed that much valuable work had been done in distributing clothing to needy families. During the meeting, Miss A. B. Cooke gave a short talk on the educational work of the order, and congratulated the chapter upon the interest which it has shown and the help given.

Mrs. Drake was accorded a standing vote of thanks for her hospitality in entertaining the members at tea and was presented with a bou-Bolt, who retired from that office after ten years, many tributes being paid to her splendid leadership.

R. B. McMICKING CHAPTER

Miss Hilda Margetts was elected regent of the Robert Burns McMicking Chapter to succeed Mrs. H. G Bolt, who retired from that office.

Other officers for the year will be: First vice-regent, Miss Elsie Jenkins; second vice-regent, Miss A. Chrow; secretary, Miss E. Tadman; educational secretary, Mrs. H. W. Davey; Echoes secretary, Mrs. W. Wilson; treasurer, Mrs. S. W. Mackintosh, and standard-bearer, Mrs. H. L. Sangster. The councillors are Miss G. Sheret, Miss L. Tebo, Miss C. Chow, Mrs. H. Hicks, Miss M. Gilliland, Miss E. Knapton, Miss W. Knapton, Miss N. Hensley and Miss M. Fottinger.

Mrs. Bolt was presented by the chapter with a fragrant corsage bouquet, in appreciation of all she has done for the chapter, and corsage bouquets were also presented to Mrs. G. B. McMicking, the honorary regent, and to Mrs. L. A. Genge, municipal regent.

BLIND ASSISTED

The report of the secretary, Mrs. H. T. Scott, outlined the past year's activities, the majority of which centred round the fund for helping the blind. Three social parties had been held for the blind and their friends; a small radio had been supplied to a blind friend, and financial assistance was given each month to two blind people throughout the year. A successful sale of articles made by the blind had been held in December, and the sum of $100 had been realized towards Christmas cheer for the blind.

A library was sent to one school and sets of history books were purchased and sent to four schools in which the chapter is interested. Donations were made to the Mary Croft Memorial Fund, the T.B. Veterans, the Columbia Coast Mission, Solarium, Sunshine Camp, Poppy Day fund and monthly donations sent to two Girl Guide companies.

The sum of $601.54 had been expended during the year, leaving a present bank balance of $9.

MEMBERS CONGRATULATED

Mrs. Genge congratulated the members of the chapter at the close of the meeting, and similar expressions of good wishes for the future and congratulations upon the past year's achievements were made by Mrs. Gordon Smith, Mrs. P. E. Corby, Mrs. Kyrie Symons, Mrs. F. B. Wright, Mrs. H. K. Prior, Mrs. R. Shanks, Mrs. W. Ellis and Miss Cooke, who were guests at the meeting.

Refreshments were served later from a lace-covered table, centred by a green bowl of daffodils and pussy willow, and Mrs. H. C. Bolt and Miss Margetts poured tea and coffee. Members of the past executive were the hostesses, with Mrs. W. Wilson as convener.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

USE "SIGNALS" TO AID TINY BABY'S LEARNING

A mother is ready enough to admit how quickly the baby learns poor habits. She picks up baby two or three times when he is crying and then vows that he purposely cries to be picked up. The probability is that this is true, but it should encourage a mother to use this knowledge in the training for good habits.

All learning is based on repetition. The more pleasurable the repetition of an act, the more quickly it is learned. Mother waves her hand and says bye-bye, or she takes baby's hand and waves it up and down and shortly, inspired by this repetition and the mother's joy when baby is successful, the baby learns to "bye-bye."

SLEEPING AND EATING SIGNALS

Recently a mother told me how effectively and easily an old nurse had trained her twins to recognize the approach of sleep-time. Each time they were put into bed the children were wrapped snugly in their blankets with their arms held firmly to their sides.

When it came time for bottles, the blankets were loosened and immediately food was presented. When the blankets were wrapped snugly again the infants understood that it was time to close their eyes and go to sleep.

ALWAYS THE SAME THING

It is of little importance what signal one uses for apprising a child of the imminence of certain facts, whether that be the approach of bed or nap or meal or toilet time. The main thing is that we increase his chances of learning quickly, if we make use of some device or some sign which becomes permanently connected with the whole situation.

Before bottle time we may always put a bib on baby; before toilet time we may always say the word, "toilet." Before nap time we may always adjust the blinds to darken the room, but always we should do the same thing in the same way.

BABY'S OWN SIGNALS

How many children do you know who initiate their own signals and won't go to sleep without some beloved pet animal in bed with them or with the end of a particular blanket in their hands, or most often with that old villain bottle.

To wrap the baby snugly in a blanket and then turn out the lights and leave the room becomes a whole ceremony which he recognizes as the pathway to sleep. Likewise the loosening of the blanket prefaces the coming of food. Both of these little acts will held without force to teach the baby what he is expected to do, and we can be sure that in no time at all, the smart baby will recognize the signal.

VINA DELMAR'S GREATEST STORY

This letter introduces Cynthia Carson, poignantly charming heroine of Vina Delmar's flaming new novel now beginning in Liberty—her adventures in Hollywood will carry you from pinnacle to pinnacle of breath-taking suspense.

Dear Ray:

Your messenger just arrived and I am good and sore. In the first place it is none of your business if Bruce MacDougal is coming here for dinner this evening.

I know who he is and I know my lowly position. The caste system of India hasn't got this beat one bit. I'm nobody and that makes me an untouchable in Hollywood. Also you think Bruce MacDougal is romping around because I look like just another telephone number. Ray, let me have an evening of peace and quiet with a man who isn't on the make. I'm sorry if that hurts you, but let's be honest with each other.

Look, you have your home and your little girl and your movie empire and I haven't a thing. Give me a break. You wouldn't talk about me, would you, Ray? You wouldn't say to anybody "Oh, Cynthia Carson" in that tone that a man uses when he wants to spill the beans and still be able to claim that he never kissed and told. Give me a break, Ray. And I'm not asking you to lie. I'm just asking you to keep quiet. Please, for Heaven's sake, give me a break.

Yours,
Cynthia.

RECORD SUM FOR WELFARE

Over $3,000,000 Subscribed to Charitable Agencies in Canada

Ottawa, Feb. 6. — The Canadian Council of Child and Family Welfare last night made public a report showing 1934 contributions throughout Canada for community chest and welfare federations of almost $3,000,000, a new record.

The report said a total of $2,911,786, an increase of $137,000 over the 1933 figure, was raised by twelve charitable federations in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver. The amount will be used to support about 260 federated services through 1935.

Montreal federated charities collected the highest individual total of more than $700,000, while the Vancouver Welfare Federation led with the largest number of affiliated organizations, forty-two. The Winnipeg Community Chest reached objectives set before campaign workers.

The report gave individual campaign totals as follows: Halifax Community Chest, $61,000; Montreal Federated Charities, $700,019; Montreal English Catholic Charities, $180,100; Montreal Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, $205,000; Montreal Federations des Oeuvres de Charite Canadiennes - Francaises, $289,020; Toronto Federation for Community Service, $443,233; Toronto Catholic Charities, $103,510; Toronto Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, $65,000; Ottawa Federated Charities, $136,957; Hamilton Community Fund, $91,500; Winnipeg Community Chest, $270,000; Vancouver Welfare Federation, $300,500.

Graduate Nurses Name Officers

Other officers chosen were: First vice-president, Miss M. Mirfield; second vice-president, Mrs. F. Kirkness; secretary, Miss M. King; treasurer, Miss W. Cooke; registrar, Miss E. Franks. Additional member of executive, Miss T. Lock.

About eighty members were present and listened with interest to the various reports. That of the registrar, Miss Franks, was particularly encouraging and optimistic, from the nurses' standpoint, showing that whereas in 1933 the total calls through her office were only 1,322, last year there were 1,526, or an increase of 306. In 1933 the average number of calls per day was 3.35, and last year 4.18.

The report of the secretary recalled the many interesting meetings that had been held, the programme committee having been very fortunate in securing excellent speakers.

Miss Herbert, in her valedictory as president, reviewed the year's happenings and spoke in encouraging vein to the members, especially the younger members of the profession. Miss Herbert received many tributes to her able guidance and wise leadership, much regret being expressed at her resignation from the office which she has filled with such distinction.

Daughter of Will Rogers on Stage

New York, Feb. 6.—Will Rogers would call it "ornery," and undoubtedly Broadway witnessed its "ornerriest" first night when it saw his nineteen-year-old daughter, Mary, make her New York stage debut in "On to Fortune."

Ornery, in this case, means something both bewildering and paradoxical.

Mary Rogers, in her role of an ingenue, proves to be a fetching, eager trouper. In her part as the fiance of a wavering banker's son, she is romantic, calm, collected and much prettier than the "Follies" girls who used to compose a background for her father. The play, "On to Fortune," was written by Lawrence Wagner and Armina Marshall.

Vice-president Mrs. A. E. Boyer presided. Miss Queenie Shields conducted the devotional period. Following the business session, Mrs. A. E. TRAVEL MADE HIM CONSTIPATED

Salesman Says Kruschen the Only Thing

TO KEEP HIM "ON HIS TOES"

"I am a commercial traveller," writes a correspondent, "and due to endless travelling by train, I find that I became constipated if I do not keep myself well purged. Kruschen Salts is the only thing that will do this effectively, and not interfere with my work. I take a large dose of Kruschen every Saturday night, and on Sunday, when I have no work to do, the Salts act on me. On week days I take a small dose the first thing on rising. It is necessary that I be 'on my toes' all through the day, and this is the only way that it possibly can be done. I have tried other laxatives, and they have proven to be either unreliable or harsh in their action."—V. L.

Half the ills which afflict humanity can be traced to one root cause. That cause is internal sluggishness: failure to keep the system free from poisonous waste matter. Auto-toxemia, or self-poisoning, is the inevitable penalty.

Kruschen Salts is Nature's recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The six salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your system is then kept clear of those impurities which, if allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

SILKEN SPINDLES

She said, "I can't stay any longer," and got to her feet. "Father's alone," she explained, "and I promised I wouldn't be away long. I shouldn't have stayed as long as I have."

Brian began tramping out the fire. "All right," he said. "we'll go. But I want you to promise me something. Promise you'll meet me here to-morrow night."

CHAPTER XVI

Brian went on, not waiting for an answer. "We'll skate up the river," he said, "maybe as far as the Fulton Bridge. It's smooth all the way, they say. And solid—"

When there was no answer he turned. "See here," he said, "you're not going to say you won't come? Not doing the disappearing act again when we're just getting acquainted?"

Gale said, "No—"

"You'd better not," Brian said heartily. "What time shall we make it?"

The campfire was only a bed of smoking embers now. Brian turned his heel on a half-burned bit of drift wood and looked up. Gale had moved farther into the shadows.

She said, "I shouldn't come—"

"Why not?"

"Because I shouldn't," she told him.

"Doesn't sound like a good reason to me. Do you mean you don't want to?"

"I didn't say that."

"Well, look here, you and I went to school together, didn't we? We're practically old friends. I'll bet we know a lot of the same people—"

"Yes," she agreed, "I suppose we do. But we're not in school now. I—I can't stay and talk about it any longer. I've got to go—"

"Not until you tell me when I'm going to see you again. What am I to do? You won't talk to me at the mill. You won't let me walk home with you. Can I come to your house?"

"No," she said quickly. "Oh, no, you mustn't do that!"

"But I want to see you!" He was near enough to touch her, though he did not. "I like you Gale Henderson. I like you a lot—"

The dark lashes were lowered. Her face, in the darkness, was only an oval of misty-white. Gale did not speak for a moment. Then she said slowly, "I'll—try to come. I can't promise for sure."

"What time?"

"The same time as to night."

Gale stepped out on the ice. She said, "It's only a little way to the boat house. I'd rather you didn't come with me."

"You're sure you'll be all right?"

"Of course I will! Good night."

"Good night—"

She skated rapidly, but it couldn't have been the exercise that made her cheeks glow so warmly and set her pulse to pounding. It couldn't have been the exercise that put the star-shine in the gray eyes.

* * *

The lamp in the living-room was burning as Gale came up the front walk. She let herself in the house and her father looked up from the book he was reading.

"Have a good time?" he asked.

"Yes. The ice was like glass."

"Many skating?"

"Quite a few."

She went into the kitchen to dry her skates and put them away. When she came back she asked, "Phil hasn't come in yet?"

"No."

Her father shook his head. "Go on and get your sleep," he said. "I'll read a little longer. Maybe Phil will come—"

Gale turned into the little box-like bedroom. She slipped out of her clothing and pulled a gown over her head. Then she stood before the square, old-fashioned mirror and brushed her hair. Fifty strokes on either side. Presently she put out the light and crept between the covers.

But it was a long time before sleep came. Over and over Gale told herself, "There can't be any harm in it—just going skating. I won't do it again, of course. But just this once! He isn't a bit like people think. He isn't a snob and he doesn't put on airs. He's been all the places I want to go and seen the things I want to see, and he's fun to talk to. It's silly to make so much out of something that's just nothing at all."

They were perfectly good arguments but they couldn't quite silence the clear, small voice that objected, "You shouldn't have done it; you know you shouldn't have promised to meet him to-morrow."

Gale repeated the arguments and added some new ones. And all the time she was seeing Brian Westmore as he stood looking down at her, hearing him say, "I like you, Gale Henderson. I like you a lot—"

* * *

She couldn't forget that. It was something to keep tightly in her heart and cherish, something so precious that she was afraid to take it out and examine it closely even here in the darkness. It was something — the preciousness of that moment—Gale wasn't ready to acknowledge even to herself.

She went to sleep at last, dreaming of a pair of dark eyes that were serious one moment and laughing at you the next, hearing a voice that was low-pitched, a trifle husky and exciting—

It was Phil who awakened her. She felt his hand on her arm and saw the triangle of yellow light shining through the doorway.

"You'd better get up," Phil said. "It's Dad. I'm afraid he's worse—" Gale was out of bed in an instant, rummaging for her slippers. She caught up an old flannel dressing robe and threw it around her.

"What's happened?" she demanded. "Is it—"

"I don't know exactly," Phil told her. "He hasn't ever been like this before. He says he can't get his breath."

Gale wasn't listening. She flew down the hall to the front bedroom. "Father," she said, "what is it?"

The big man, lying in the bed, gasped hoarsely. "I—can't—breathe," he said.

"But father—"

Gale was down on her knees beside him. Once more the sharp, wheezing sound came. "Can't—get—my breath." Tom Henderson repeated. "Here—" He put his hand on his chest, as though to indicate where the trouble was.

Gale said, "Phil, help me!" Together they lifted their father propping pillows behind him until he was half-lying, half-sitting.

* * *

But the wheezing continued. Gale had never heard anything like it. "You'll have to get Doctor Carr," she told her brother—and she could not keep her voice from trembling. "Hurry, hurry as fast as you can, Phil—!"

He mumbled something and disappeared. The sharp, rasping noise came from the bed again.

"Air," Tom Henderson said. "I—want—air—"

"Is that better?"

Her father nodded. She heard the outer door close and knew that Phil was on his way. The doctor's home was on the other side of town. Phil could telephone from the store on the corner. No—he couldn't. It wouldn't be open at this time. But the Nicolettis had a telephone. He could wake them.

Tom Henderson's eyes were closed now. He lay back against the pillow and for one terrifying moment something icy tightened about the girl's heart. Then her father opened his eyes again. Slow color came back into the girl's cheeks.

"Maybe something hot to drink would help," she said. "I'll fix it—it won't take a moment."

She hurried to the kitchen, lighted the fire and got out a saucepan. In a few moments she was back with a pitcher of hot milk and a cup. "If you'll try to drink this, Father," she said, "I think it may make you feel better."

But he could not drink the milk. Even that slight effort seemed too much for him. The harsh, rasping breathing continued. The girl, listening, thought that the breathing sounded weaker, more labored.

There was no other sound in the room—only the harsh, tortured struggle for breath.

Gale pressed her hands together, twisting them, unaware of the pain. "If the doctor would only come!" she prayed. "If he'd only come!"

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, nasty pills, or laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and happy and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a dizzy, bad tasted and your breath is foul. Your skin breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and at." They contain wonderful, gentle, purely vegetable extracts, celebrated when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute. 25 cents. ©1935 C.M.Co.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

By MARY E. DAGUE

I remember when I was an underfoot youngster that the surest portent of something extra special to eat occurred when mother put the deep fat kettle on the stove to heat. Usually, in those days, it was croquettes that would come tumbling out of the crackling grease, cooked to a luscious, irresistible brown. Occasionally, as a winter night treat, there would be fritters, their fruity odors summoning even the most reluctant diner from the far corners of the house.

There are lots of foods that taste their sumptuous best when cooked in deep fat and right here I would like to start a revival of that method of cookery.

Foods properly fried in deep fat can be included in the diet of any healthy person; as a matter of fact, deep fat frying is superior to pan frying since less fat is absorbed.

HOW TO CLARIFY FAT

The temperature of the fat determines the digestibility of the food. It is the overheating of fat that makes fried food harmful, so a thermometer should be used as a guide.

However, the fat must be hot enough to sear the outside of the food immediately to form a crust and prevent the fat from soaking through.

Any good clean fat or oil is suitable, and if given proper care can be used over and over again.

To clarify fat from unsalted meats, add sliced raw potatoes, washed but not pared, to cold fat. Heat very slowly and when the bubbling in the fat (due to the water in the potatoes) ceases and the potato slices are floating, remove from fire and strain through double thicknesses of cheesecloth.

STRAIN FAT AFTER USING

Always strain fat through double cheesecloth each time it is used. This removes the particles of food or flour that have settled to the bottom of the frying kettle during cooking. Careful straining and an occasional clarifying keep the fat sweet and clear.

Fritters, doughnuts and uncooked mixtures generally are put into fat at a temperature of 370 degrees F. Hold the temperature at 350 degrees F. during frying.

To start you anew on the deep fat career, try French doughnuts, delightfully different and fine for one of February's salaries.

FRENCH DOUGHNUTS

One cup boiling water, ½ cup butter, 1 cup bread flour, 4 eggs.

Add butter to boiling water and when butter is melted add all at once the flour which has been sifted. Stir vigorously as flour is added and continue to stir until a stiff dough is formed that will not stick to the saucepan. Remove from fire and let cool two or three minutes. Then beat in eggs, one at a time, adding each only after the one before has been thoroughly beaten into the dough. Put into a pastry bag and form in circles on a sheet of paper cut to fit your frying kettle. Make the circles about two inches in diameter. Slip the sheet of paper into a kettle of fat heated to 370 degrees F. and keep the temperature at 350 during the frying. Cook about five minutes or until the doughnuts are well puffed and nicely browned. Slip off of paper with a spatula and drain on crumpled paper. Fill with whipped cream or a rich custard. To fill make a small hole in one side of doughnut and squeeze filling in through a pastry tube.

These doughnuts may be cooled, sprinkled with powdered sugar and served plain, too, although the filling add much to their attractiveness.

TO-MORROW'S MENU

Dinner: Mock drumsticks, potatoes au gratin, buttered new cabbage, pear and peanut butter salad, French doughnuts filled with whipped cream, milk, coffee.

Metchosin

The monthly meeting of the horticultural section of the Metchosin District Community Club will be held in the Community Hall on Monday evening next, February 11.

P. C. Black of the department of agriculture will give an address on "Soil Preparation and Fertility."

Under the auspices of the Metchosin branch of the Women's Auxiliary a social evening will be held Tuesday, February 12, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bell.

PATTI GOES SKIING

Patti Chapin, young songstress, welcomed the blizzard that recently descended on New York. Patti, an ardent outdoor girl, got out her skis to frolic in Central Park. Why at 40 You Think You're "Growing Old"

At about 40, many people think they're "growing old." They're tired a lot. Have headaches more often. And they're subject to stomach upsets — nausea. Talk of "nerves."

Well, scientists say the cause, in a great many cases, is merely this: a tendency to an acid condition of the stomach. Likely the result of faulty diet.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. Soon you feel like another person.

Signs Which Often Indicate "Acid Stomach"

What To Do For It

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water in the morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

Stomach calm. Fewer headaches. And the pep and energy you thought lost, comes back again!

Try this. Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'", or, the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—convenient to take with you anywhere.

Also in Tablet Form: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

YOUR CHILDREN

BABY DEVELOPS WILL OF HIS OWN AT THREE

When the baby is three years old, (his fourth year, counting as we do with birthdays at the end of the year) you have almost an entirely new being on your hands.

He will look the same and act much the same, and, except that he seems wiser and a bit more independent, he is still the cute little fellow he was before.

Now something gradually begins to worry you. He's getting bad. He doesn't take your word as he used to. He refuses to do your bidding at times and develops a temper. With whom has he been playing? Where could he have picked up the irritating little habits? He is getting contrary and notionable, too. One day he will play with his wagon and blocks and the next he won't look at them.

THE CHILD HAS GROWN UP

"I've lost my dear little baby," you mourn. Indeed you have, Billy or Tommy, or Mary or Jane, for there is no difference as far as the facts go, is growing up.

Don't feel too badly about it. He is going to be more interesting than ever. Remember this, also. Even though he defies you a bit, you are just as necessary and dear to him as ever. Being near you, you are used as the guinea-pig for his experiments. It will be on you, mother dear, that he will try out that newly-found will of his. He has to match his great determination, so recently discovered over night, against somebody's and it may as well be you.

But how did he get this way? Where did he find he had a will?

It was there all the time. Nature has only waited until now to offer one more from her bag of tricks. Her job was to keep him receptive and content and let his fat little body get a good start. Time enough for shenanigans. The time is about due.

I ask all mothers of the three-year-old baby to display as much patience as possible during this year, the important and glorious fourth year that is one of the most momentous of all life.

For the first time the child is aware of himself as a real identity.

Don't take him too terribly seriously, but don't let him suspect you of levity. This would be disastrous. He will be open to jollity, though. There is a difference between being laughed "at" and laughed "with."

DISCOUNT HIS ANNOYING WAYS

Discount all you can when he is showing off and demonstrating how contrary and obstreperous and naughty he can be. If you go in for smackings he will keep you busy. He will associate punishment not at all with his misbehavior, but think you just don't like him any more. And his developing will, determined for the moment to come out on top, will go on determining itself.

This transition period from babyhood to childhood is a discouraging time for the mother who does not understand it to be merely a "period." In a year or two, although he may not (and I hope not) get over his little independences, he will grow in judgment and knowledge and unless he has set up a deep resentment against the world (which I also hope not) he will most likely be sweet.

By catching his interest and by little plays of pretend and by diplomacy, miracles can be accomplished. He can be disciplined without souring. Sometimes he may need direct discipline. I leave this to the mother. But constructive training bears the best fruit.

CANADA HOLDS WORLD SUPPLY

Nickel Reserves Already Developed Enough For Earth in Next Generation

Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 6.—Developed ore reserves in Canada contain sufficient nickel to meet the world's requirements for more than a generation, G. R. J. Fraser, superintendent of technical service of the International Nickel Company, said in an address before the Rochester section of the American Chemical Society.

Speaking on "Nickel in Industrial Chemistry," Mr. Fraser pointed out that "low alloy, nickel-bearing steels enter very largely into the vital parts of bridges, motive power, automobiles, machine tools, and much of the heavy duty processing equipment." He outlined a number of uses of nickel little known to the layman.

"Medieval German glass makers used nickel arsenide to impart a greenish color to their product," Mr. Fraser said. "Modern efforts have been made to use nickel as a decolorizer in flint glass in place of the not altogether satisfactory selenium-cobalt and selenium-manganese combinations.

NICKEL IN SILK

"Current Japanese researchers in silk include the effect of various metallic compounds on the swelling of fibres. Nickel nitrate is one of the active salts. Ammoniacal nickel oxide solutions by themselves are known swelling agents and are patented in Great Britain for use in modifying the transparency, lustre, dyeing properties, and feel of silk.

"Nickel compounds have had some slight use in pharmacology and have been included in very recent years in nutritional researches, but without disclosing anything of great moment as yet. There are possibilities in water purification.

"The U.S. Forests Products laboratory has under way some long time tests on wood preservatives, which include nickel compounds."

Canadian Scottish To Recall Glories

Col. Cy Peck, V.C., D.S.O., will preside at this year's annual dinner of former members of the 16th Battalion, Canadian Scottish, C.E.F., to be staged on Saturday, February 16, in the Legion Hall, Seymour Street, Vancouver.

Oh that night Time will be turned back to those years spent in Flanders Fields . . . old friendships . . . old stories . . . and old songs will all be lived over again . . . and on that night, too, many a thought will be of old comrades who lie beneath a little white cross and of many who have gone since their return home.

The 16th Battalion made the famous charge at Ypres in April, 1915. Two months later at Festubert a Coldstream officer wrote of them: "The 16th Battalion Canadian Scottish, in the face of terrific fire, attacked as though walking across their own parade ground."

From the beginning to the end, this famous unit, first recruited from the 72nd Seaforths of Vancouver, with the late Col. R. G. Edwards Leckie as its O.C., and later his brother, Col. Jack Leckie, in command, the Gordons of Victoria, the Camerons of Winnipeg and the Argyles and Sutherlands of Hamilton covered themselves with glory in all their engagements, and were held in highest regard.

Many were the tributes paid to the 16th by other commanders, and on one occasion, when relieving the French, the commander of the French troops took off his own Croix de Guerre and presented it to Col. Peck. On another occasion, when called in as emergency to repulse an attack, the 16th to the tune of their own "March Past," were piped away by the 42nd Cameron Highlanders.

In the famous shrine at Edinburgh Castle, all Canadian battalions, with the exception of the 16th Battalion, are included in the "plaques" with the Imperial regiments with which they are affiliated. The 16th have the honor of having a plaque of their own. The battalion is affiliated with the Royal Scots and wear the famous Stewart tartan of the 9th Royal Scots, the "Dandy Ninth" of Edinburgh.

Among those present will be Col. Jack Leckie, C.M.G., D.S.O.; Major G. Lyons, D.C.M.; Col. V. McLean, M.C.; Col. W. W. Foster, D.S.O.; Col. John Peters McKenzie, D.S.O.; Col. McMillan; Col. A. D. Wilson, D.S.O., and Major Duncan Bell-Irving of the Flying Corps. Members wishing to attend should get in touch with the entertainment committee composed of A. C. Cameron, D. Johnstone, B. C. Lunn, V. Bennett, S. Lloyd, G. Ross and W. Ashton.

60% have Nerve Disorders
Say consulting physicians

It is shown by medical statistics,
That 60% of cases treated by physicians
Are attributable to disordered nerves.
Only those who have suffered
From nervous breakdown
Realize the torments endured
From loss of nerve force.
Health, strength and happiness are measured
By your nerve force.
When nerve force is lacking,
You become irritable, worried, discouraged and blue.
You cannot rest or sleep well,
And there is little chance of regaining health
Without the assistance of a good nerve restorative,
Such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food,
To create new nerve force in the body.

HOBBIES FAIR IS NEXT WEEK

All Ages, Including Adults, to Be Catered to By Y.M.C.A. Exhibition

Exhibition rather than competition will be the object of the Hobby Fair to be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday and Saturday, February 15 and 16. The aim of the organizers is to assemble a large number of exhibits of all sorts in preference to a few highly finished and technical ones.

This year's fair will be an altogether bigger scale show than those held in the past. For the first time the fair is open to all ages, from small children to adults. It is intended to cater to the thousands of persons in Victoria who have hobbies of all types. Practically every hobby imaginable will be represented.

Entries for the fair should be turned in on the proper form not later than February 11, and exhibits must be in place on the morning of February 15.

Classes in the fair, which is divided into four age groups, will cover art, natural history, collections, camp craft, sea craft, model airplanes and yachts, national exhibits, handicrafts, industrial crafts, photography, cooking, sewing and an essay competition.

Ribbon awards will be granted in the various sections of each class and age group.

LIBRARY BEFORE NANAIMO COUNCIL

Nanaimo, Feb. 6.—Nanaimo council in session Monday night decided to meet the library board to discuss the question of an up-island regional library. Communications from Dr. Helen Stewart and Mrs. Napier of Victoria were laid on the table for a week. Mayor Barsby informed the council that a committee working with the Board of Trade and Mining Bureau were preparing a brief for the Royal Commission on fuel. Engineer Graham will be instructed to prepare schemes and report on ways and means of eliminating flood conditions in the ravine area. Fire Chief Larkin reported seven fire alarms for the month of January with $600 damage.

COBBLE HILL

Cobble Hill, Feb. 6.—At the vestry meeting of St. John's Church, Cobble Hill, the report of the churchwardens showed that all obligations had been met and practically the same balance was left as last year. During the year, iron railings and gates, with brick posts, had been erected along the road frontage; an entirely new seating accommodation had been put in the church, also a circulating heater.

Mrs. G. A. Cheghe was appointed vicar's warden, Capt. A. D. Welstead being elected people's warden.

The following were elected to the church committee: Mrs. D. Alexander, Mrs. W. E. Cockshott, Mrs. S. Gibson, Mrs. F. E. Glossop, Mrs. Horton, Mrs. C. Wace, Mrs. S. Wolfe, Miss G. Welstead, W. H. Matthews, R. B. Moulton, E. C. Nightingale and Mr. Smith. Delegates to the synod will be Capt. A. D. Welstead and G. A. Cheghe.

BAPTIST CHURCH WILL BE MOVED

Congregation of First Baptist to Worship in Shrine Temple After Change

Present premises of the First Baptist Church on Quadra Street will be vacated about the end of next month, when the congregation will move to the Shrine Temple, it was announced following a special meeting of the church committee on Monday.

The change is being made solely in the interests of economy and the committee stated it was not intended to indicate any loss in church membership. Efforts to secure lower rental rates for the present site, owned by the United Church, were unsuccessful, and last year the church was unable to balance its financial statement without help from the Women's Union.

In taking over their new quarters the committee members hope to find it possible to set aside regular contributions towards a building fund with which it may ultimately be possible to erect a church building on property on Vancouver Street, on which the church is now paying taxes.

Election of officers resulted as follows: Honorary presidents, Father Latour, Mrs. James Marsh, Mrs. O. C. Brown and Miss L. E. Baron; president, Mrs. H. P. Swan; first vice-president, Mrs. H. Marsh; second vice-president, Mrs. C. Roy; secretary, Mrs. R. O. Tait; treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Hodding. Mrs. Collard and Mrs. Garnus were made councillors.

TIMELY ADVICE TO GARDENERS

Charles Bennett Addresses Victoria Horticultural Society in City Hall

Giving seasonable advice on necessary spade work and fertilizing in the garden, Charles Bennett addressed a large and interested audience at the monthly meeting of the Victoria Horticultural Society, held in the City Hall yesterday evening.

Digging, he declared, was not an arduous task and delighted the gathering by aptly illustrating the best method of turning over the soil.

The finest results could not be obtained from a garden unless the trench system was practiced, the speaker affirmed. This work should be done when the ground was damp, not when it was dry.

Mr. Bennett recommended barnyard manure as the best fertiliser. Fresh manure should be used in the hot frame first, and subsequently incorporated in the soil. The speaker also gave a list of artificial manures for various crops, and pointed out that virgin soil should not need any fertiliser for the first year at any rate. After that manure could be used judiciously.

KITCHEN GARDEN

In discussing the kitchen garden, the speaker claimed that it should give as much pleasure to the householder as the flower beds. Substantial paths in the "backyard" gardens were essential. Many gardeners practiced a rotation of crops which was very good.

Soil treatment was another phase of gardening touched upon by Mr. Bennett. Good drainage was a necessity in every city lot, no matter how small or how pretentious, and was all the more needed where the soil was of a heavy nature.

Soil of this type could be considerably lightened by adding lime rubble or sand. Beds facing south or west were the best sites for early flowers and vegetables.

Mr. Bennett told of the proper time to sow various kinds of seeds, but advised his audience to have the soil in proper condition before putting down any, for on this latter point depended the success or failure of a garden.

NEW GARDEN COMPETITION

F. R. Leighton, at the close of the meeting put forward a plan for a new type of garden competition. The gardens would be judged from their appearance on the street. He suggested that a survey of all gardens in the city should be conducted and the best in different districts picked out.

These would later compete for the championship. He felt that this scheme would help substantially in beautifying Victoria. The plan met with the general approval of the meeting.

Winners of the monthly competition were as follows: Pot of bulbs, 1, A. M. Scott; 2, E. W. Darcus. Vegetables, leeks, 1, A. O. Miles; 2, W. R. Nichols.

George Little showed a Brussels sprout which was five feet tall, and which had yielded eight and a quarter pounds in sprouts.

THIRD DAY OF SCHOOL STRIKE

Cadboro Bay Pupils Again Kept From School; Temporary Supervision Arranged

Children of the Cadboro Bay district this morning entered the third day of the strike, called by their parents in an attempt to have the Saanich School Board provide extra transportation to Cedar Hill School from the bay area.

The roll call showed thirty-two children were under supervision to-day in the Children's Aid Hall, and it was reported a former teacher, whose name was not disclosed, would probably be in attendance to assist the youngsters with their lessons. Miss Dorothy Inglis, Mrs. J. G. Jones and E. D. Wakelyn also took part in the supervising.

The committee reported several qualified teachers had volunteered their services for the children, but to-day the supervision was carried along with the same staff as yesterday.

DAY'S TIME-TABLE

During the morning classes the children studied under an organized schedule, including the following subjects: Arithmetic, spelling, dictation, reading, geography and grammar. The afternoon subjects were history, literature, physical training and educational games. The children were able to go home for hot lunches during the dinner hour.

During the recess period and after school a football was provided to allow them to play games on the grounds.

The school trustees will meet this evening and probably decide the future of the transportation problem for the district. No statement has been forthcoming from the board officials to date.

While the trustees are in session the ratepayers' association of Ward Three will also be discussing the matter at a meeting in the Sea Scouts' Hall, Cadboro Bay.

An executive of the Cadboro Bay committee stated this morning that body did not intend to withdraw its efforts until satisfactory accommodation had been provided for the children by either additional transportation or a new school.

INSIST ON RIDES

They did not intend to allow small children residing west of Hobbs Road—who under the school board ruling are prohibited from riding in the bus—make the two-mile walk to Cedar Hill school. At present the only ones eligible to ride are those residing at the bus terminus, which is 3.4 miles from the school, and those who catch the bus at the Cadboro Bay post-office, which is 2.6 miles from the school.

SCIENTISTS FIND FASTER WAY TO RELIEVE COLDS

1. Take 2 Aspirin Tablets.

2. Drink full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

3. If throat is sore, crush and stir 2 Aspirin Tablets in a third of a glass of water and gargle. This eases the soreness in your throat almost instantly.

Ache and Discomfort Eased Almost Instantly Now

Just take Aspirin and drink plenty of water . . . every 2 to 4 hours the first day—less often afterward . . . If throat is sore, use the Aspirin gargle.

But be sure you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin Tablet. Aspirin is the trade mark of the Bayer Company, Limited.

How do you CHOOSE?

Every time you make a purchase you make a choice. Buying a certain product may be so much a matter of habit that you don't realize you are choosing. But the fact remains that in accepting one brand of goods you are always rejecting others; and the satisfaction you get from what you buy depends on the knowledge of quality and values that guides your selection.

How do you know which bed sheets, or which roofing material, or which radio will give you service you require? You can't personally test everything you buy and compare it with all the other products in its class. But there is a way to find out which brand fits your needs.

The people who are most successful in their buying—who achieve the highest percentage of satisfaction from the things they own and use—are those who consistently read the advertising columns and buy consistently advertised goods.

VOLCANO IN ERUPTION AFTER 800 YEARS

The Solfatara, or volcanic vent, near Pozzuoli, Italy, which has been dormant since the twelfth century, recently forced a new outlet, and caused scientists to hurry to the scene of the activity. The above picture shows the new outlet emitting vapor which is being tested by scientists who found it to have a temperature of 200 degrees Centigrade.

LABOR MEMBER OUT OF ORDER

J. McGovern Uses King's Name in British Commons Before He Is Silenced

London, Feb. 6.—James McGovern, Glasgow Laborite, launched an attack in the House of Commons yesterday on the King and members of the Royal Family, but was promptly ruled out of order. He wound up his outburst by charging: "This government is a gang of national crooks."

"We pay King George £10,750 a week (approximately $53,750) and one shilling (25 cents) a minute to Kent and his wife," McGovern cried before he was interrupted. (The Duke of Kent, youngest son of the King and Queen, married Princess Marina of Greece last November.)

The House was debating changes in the complex unemployment relief system.

Before he was called to order, the Glasgow member said he had heard $150,000 to $200,000 was going to be spent on the King's silver jubilee celebrations this spring.

DAY OF MOURNING

"I say it should be spent," he cried, "in erecting black flags throughout the length and breadth of this country for a day of national mourning for the common people who are being destroyed and degraded by this National Government.

"If your class goes to war," he said further, "you will appeal to the workingmen to help you. And I hope when that day draws the workers will use their rifles on the ruling classes."

A group of about fifty alleged Communists created a disturbance in the central lobby of the Commons yesterday evening, shouting "We want bread" and other remarks, indicating their opposition to the dole plan. Police quickly silenced and ejected them from the building.

Parliamentary rules in the British House of Commons prohibit the mention of the King in debate, but such firebrands as McGovern and his fellow Radicals have burst forth against royalty several times in recent years. In 1933 McGovern interrupted the King in the course of the Speech from the Throne.

NEW SET-UP FOR "DOLE"

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 6—The "dole" is to be overhauled. The cabinet met to-day and considered the necessary legislation promised by Oliver Stanley, Minister of Labor, in parliament yesterday, following complaints from all parties that culminated in disorders in the House of Commons on January 30, and various untoward incidents since.

The surge of discontent over the stringent regulations of the gigantic new Unemployment Assistance Act threatened to undermine even the big parliamentary majority of the National Government itself.

The new bill, bringing 16,000,000 persons within its scope, establishes an unemployment assistance board to handle both transitional benefits and out-relief to the able-bodied unemployed.

The transitional benefits are those benefits paid to insured unemployed whose contractual benefits under the state insurance scheme have lapsed. The cost of the transitional benefits is borne entirely by the national exchequer. They are paid only after the applicant is able to pass a tight "needs" test.

Last month the unemployment assistance board, of which Lord Ruschliffe (formerly Sir Henry Betterton, Minister of Labor) became chairman, assumed charge of the transitional benefits. The board issued new "needs test" regulations. The need is assessed on defined scales.

FLOOD OF PROTESTS

Then the storm broke. The depressed areas of South Wales and the north, where unemployment is more severe and most prolonged, were in a ferment. Protests against the new scale swept the luckless ministers like an avalanche. In parliament the new scales had scarcely a friend. Government supporters from the large industrial areas vied with opposition Labor members in the vigor of their attack.

Now, bowing to the storm, the Minister of Labor has ordered a "standstill" on the regulations. All cuts would be restored, he promised the Commons yesterday. Arrears caused by the reductions would be repaid. Those whose allowances had been increased would remain on the higher scale. An immediate inquiry was ordered.

Besides reframing the regulations, an act of indemnity will be needed to indemnify the ministers against their "illegal acts" in making payments not specifically authorized by parliament in the interim before the revised regulations can be put through the House.

TWO CONSTABLES HURT IN CRASH

Vancouver, Feb. 6.—Two policemen are in hospital, one in a serious condition, as a result of their radio "prowler" car crashing into a shunting freight train at the foot of Maynour Avenue yesterday evening.

The officers, Constable Charles Geach and Constable Howard Owen, did not see the train in the heavy fog and their machine crashed between two freight cars and lodged there. It was dragged along the right of way for nearly a block before the train was stopped.

DATE SET FOR SOAP BOX RACE

Youngsters Will Build Model Speed Cars For May 24 Celebration

Youngster of Victoria, in models of racing cars made from soap boxes or other lumber, will vie for honors during the May 24 celebrations. The cars are to be of coaster type with no foot propelling.

At a meeting of the British Columbia Automotive Sports Association held yesterday May 25 was set as the date for the B.C.A.S.A. and The Victoria Daily Times' annual soapbox derby. The cars will race down the hill from Camosun Street to Cook Street. The race will start at 10 o'clock and all youngsters who plan to compete must file their entries before May 18 with Jack Smith at 931 Wharf Street or Louis Nicholson, 1002 Johnson Street.

The association ratified the proposal for auto races to be held at the Willows May 25. Fourteen cars in Victoria are now under construction. Jack Smith and Edmund Allen were named delegates to visit Seattle and enlist entries from U.S. racers.

Amalgamation of the B.C.A.S.A. with the Outboard Racing Club, the Inboard Racing Club, the Professional Motorcycle Riders' Association and the Light Airplane Club was recommended and a meeting will be held later at the call of the chair.

Plans To Strengthen Finances Discussed

Proposed Amendments to Municipal Legislation Deals With Sinking Funds and Methods of Handling

Suggested changes in the Municipal Act designed to strengthen municipal credit were discussed by government officials with leaders of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at the Legislative Buildings yesterday afternoon.

The proposals were of a tentative nature, it was explained. Following endorsement by the union, some of them may be incorporated in legislation at the session.

Important amendments with regard to the handling of sinking funds were proposed.

Chief of these was that municipal sinking fund investments should be limited to Dominion, British Columbia and a municipality's own bond issues. This proposal, which would shut out other provincial issues, was not favored by the union.

Combined with it was an amendment under which restrictions on municipal purchases of their own bonds would be lifted. At the present time a municipality can only buy, for instance, a 1937 bond to place in sinking funds against a 1937 maturity. Under the new proposal it could purchase any of its own maturities and then could make adjustments from time to time to protect the investors' equity. This was approved.

The making of a complete report from each municipality to the government at the end of the year showing individual sinking fund transactions was favored but the union objected to a suggestion that where sinking funds were found to be unsatisfactory a provincial trustees committee should administer them.

Other changes in municipal legislation that were given approval were: That an extension of time be granted taxpayers who paid one-half the upset price on tax sale lands; that assessment appeals be limited to properties which had not been reduced by more than 10 per cent on land and 5 per cent on improvements, and on appeal, no reductions would be made beyond these limitations.

Victoria's General Request For Visits By Foreign Naval Vessels Supported

Victoria's efforts to secure visits by foreign naval vessels when they cruise in the waters of the north Pacific appeared closer to success to-day.

In a letter received at the City Hall, the Under Secretary of State for External Affairs informed the city clerk he would keep Victoria's request in mind. The request went forward last month following the council's adoption of a motion launched by Alderman Archie Wills asking the authorities in Ottawa to extend to foreign vessels cruising in this vicinity an invitation to visit Victoria and the old naval port of Esquimalt.

"I have received from the Department of the Secretary of State your letter of January 24, regarding the inclusion of Esquimalt in the itineraries of any foreign naval vessels that at any time may be sent to northern Pacific waters," the letter read. "I shall have pleasure in bearing this in mind for consultation with foreign representatives concerned on any occasion that arises. I am sending a copy of your letter to the Deputy Minister of National Defence," it concluded.

Mrs. Collins was badly bruised and suffered injuries to her left leg and foot. She was attended at her home by Dr. Russell Robertson.

WOULD ALTER HALL SET-UP

May Switch Offices of City Hall Around as Result of Reorganization

Civic staffs and aldermen today gave consideration to recommendations for rearrangement of offices affected by the new reorganization of the treasury and collector's departments.

Feelings were mixed over the advisability of changing a number of the offices around, although it was thought necessary to move the assessor's office from the second story to the ground floor as a convenience to the public.

The following changes have been recommended:

The assessor and collector to occupy the treasurer's present office.

The purchasing agent to move to the comptroller's present private office.

The city clerk and solicitor's stenographer to move to the assessor's present office.

The mayor and his secretary to move to the solicitor's present office so as to bring the mayor, city clerk, solicitor and committee-room close together.

The vault on the second floor would be available for the solicitor and the city clerk.

Comptroller and treasurer's staff to move to the city clerk's present office.

Comptroller and treasurer to occupy the mayor's present private office.

The former lands department office may be used as a storeroom for old records.

Remove counter and place partition in its place to form waiting-room, and redecorate mayor's secretary's new office.

Redecorate and cut door through to assessor's present office from the solicitor's new office, and make door from committee-room to council chamber, building up present door.

Commissioner J. McMillan Will Address Public Meeting in Citadel This Evening

Victoria to-day extended a welcome to Commissioner John McMillan, commander of the Salvation Army in Canada, Newfoundland, Bermuda and Alaska.

The Salvation Army commissioner is visiting here for the first time since he was appointed to his present position by General Evangeline Booth, following the retirement of Commissioner James Hay in November last. He has the distinction of being the first Canadian-trained officer to hold the high post.

Upon arrival with Mrs. McMillan by this afternoon's boat from Vancouver, the commissioner was met at the wharf by Adjutant L. Ede, Commanding Officer in Victoria; Major R. Fullerton and Adjutant J. Sharp.

Commissioner and Mrs. McMillan bring messages to the local branch of the Salvation Army, and this evening at 8 o'clock he will speak at the Broad Street Citadel. Hon. Gordon Sloan, K.C., Attorney-General, representing the provincial government, and Mayor Leeming, are expected to be on the platform to welcome the visitors.

To-morrow morning, the commissioner will call upon Lieutenant-Governor Johnson at Government House and Premier Pattullo at the Parliament Buildings.

OF SCOTTISH STOCK

Born in Scotland of Salvation Army parents, Commissioner McMillan came to Canada as a boy, receiving his education at Toronto. He entered the Salvation Army training school and became private secretary to Commandant Herbert Booth, son of General Booth.

Subsequently, Commissioner McMillan was transferred to Australia and while there rose to be field secretary, the third office in the Commonwealth. He returned to Canada as chief secretary, the second highest office in the country, only to be returned to Great Britain as chief secretary for field affairs, being stationed in London.

He again crossed the Atlantic, this time to the United States, and became commander of the central territory at Chicago. Later he was transferred to New York and remained there until his appointment to Canada last November.

Mrs. McMillan takes a great interest in women's work, particularly in the home league department. In this connection, while stationed in London, she had upwards of 90,000 women under her direction.

Woodland Bulbs Are in Flower

Mrs. W. G. F. Darrett of Oak Bay and T. Colby of Cadboro Bay, Thrilled at Finding Harbingers of Spring

More harbingers of spring were seen to-day when a native of the woodlands woke up to greet the warm sunshine. Mrs. W. G. F. Darrett, 1555 Mitchell Street, Oak Bay, was thrilled to see a dog-toothed violet or Easter lily just about to burst its bud when she stepped into her garden this morning.

This pretty little bulb plant, which grows in such wild profusion around Victoria, was not the only one in her garden bearing a promise of flowers in the near future. Mrs. Darrett noticed others pushing their buds into the air, but this was the only one showing any sign of color.

T. Colby of Cadboro Bay also found some wild bulbs blooming in his garden. They were erythoriums or what are commonly known as shooting stars, dainty natives of Vancouver Island.

Mr. Colby declared that these plants were blooming three weeks earlier than usual.

FINANCES GOOD AT ST. JOHN'S

Outstanding Accounts Lowered and All Departments Had Surplusses

Substantial reductions in outstanding accounts and cash balances for every branch of activity, were among the encouraging features of the annual meeting of St. John's Church, held yesterday evening. The year was viewed as a most successful one for the church and all departments received the thanks and congratulations of Canon F. A. P. Chadwick for their splendid work.

Canon Chadwick also thanked the choir and G. J. Burnett, organist, for their co-operation.

Among the business discussed at the meeting was the question of improving houses standing on property owned by the Parish Hall fund, and it was indicated this work would be undertaken shortly.

The following officers were elected: R. E. Burns, rector's warden; E. E. Richards, people's warden; J. Lever, E. W. Meadows, Alfred Hallam, Dr. A. O. Price, C. Tice, R. H. B. Ker, W. A. Patterson, G. W. Bilbrough, S. C. Hawkins and R. W. O. Savage, church committee, and E. J. Patt, treasurer.

The A.T.P.A. was asked to nominate the sidesmen, who will be under the direction of the two wardens, who are chief sidesmen.

R. E. Burns was re-elected envelope secretary.

TRUSTEES PLAN IMPROVEMENTS

Oak Bay School Board Hopes to Include Painting of Buildings in Estimates

Despite the fact that proposed improvements to school buildings would necessitate additional appropriations for this year, the Oak Bay School Board hopes to complete its 1935 budget at the same figure as last year. At a meeting yesterday evening the trustees dealt further with the estimates, which they expect will be completed some time next week.

Little change in the board's revenue is anticipated during the coming year, and the major difference in the expenditures will be that for repainting of some of the school buildings which the trustees hope to make possible.

In 1934 the board received $78,082.75 from municipal revenue, this requiring a rate of twelve mills on land and on 36 per cent of improvements. The total number required for the budget was 688,134.11.

Fruit Growers Are Encouraging

Fruit growers of the B.C. interior are feeling much encouraged by their operations of the past year, according to Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture, who has returned from the annual meeting of the B.C. Fruitgrowers' Association at Penticton.

"They have not solved all their difficulties by a long way yet," he said, "but they have a much more optimistic outlook. Operation of the Marketing Act has helped them and they are looking to a consolidation of the position they have gained."

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Cragg, who died on Monday, will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. at Sands Mortuary Chapel, Canon A. E. de L. Hunne officiating.

FRUIT EXPERT SEES MINISTER

W. B. Gornall, Canadian Fruit Commissioner in London, Says Market Better

W. B. Gornall, Canadian government fruit trade commissioner in London, whose job is to build up the Canadian fruit markets overseas, is visiting Victoria today.

He came here from the Okanagan, where he attended the convention of the B.C. Fruitgrowers' Association at Kelowna, and gave growers advice on fruit culture and the best methods of packing and shipping fruit for consumption in the United Kingdom.

This morning he went over to the Parliament Buildings to call upon the various departments there, and conferred with officials on fruit production and marketing conditions. At 2 o'clock he had a conference with Hon. K. C. MacDonald, Minister of Agriculture.

"In the best interests of the export trade to the United Kingdom there must be close co-operation and understanding with the English fruitgrower," said Mr. Gornall.

He pointed out there was a steady improvement in the sale of Canadian-grown fruit in the British market.

QUALITY WANTED

"What is wanted over there," he said, "is quality, not quantity."

During the day, Mr. Gornall is meeting berry growers of the Saanich Peninsula.

Before being appointed to his present post in London, where he has been stationed for the last fifteen months, Mr. Gornall was in the fruit branch at Ottawa. He is a friend of W. A. McAdam, acting Agent-General for British Columbia in London, and also knows Harry Beach, representative of the Saanich fruitgrowers in the British capital.

RABBIT CLUB HAS ELECTION

C. Woolley Reappointed President of British Columbia Association

All officers were re-elected at the annual meeting of the British Columbia Rabbit Breeders' Association held in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday evening. Charles Woolley, W. G. Bird and Frank Boucher were returned as president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer, respectively, for 1935.

A newcomer, D. A. Doidge, was appointed to the executive committee which will be composed of: E. Greenwood, T. Clarke, J. Slater and Mrs. J. S. Clark.

Mr. Boucher presented the report of the society which showed there had been a substantial increase in membership during 1934. Twelve meetings were held and two successful shows were promoted, one in connection with the annual Willows exhibition and the other the regular winter show of the society.

Two shipments of rabbits had been made to China, Mr. Boucher said. The secretary referred to the growing importance of Angora rabbit breeding. In this connection a committee was formed to handle all matters pertaining to Angora rabbits. This committee would meet whenever it was fit, but no action could be taken without being ratified by a general meeting of the association.

It was also decided at the meeting that the association should obtain two membership tickets in the British Columbia Agricultural Association. The memberships would be for the president and secretary, and would give the rabbit club a voice at the agricultural society's meetings.

PAY LAST TRIBUTE

The funeral of Robert Scott, who passed away at his home, 124 Hampton Road, on January 30, took place yesterday afternoon. Relatives and many friends attended the service conducted by Rev. O. L. Jull, Rev. W. R. Brown and Rev. James Hood.

The hymns sung were "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Abide With Me." Miss Jean McGowan sang as a solo "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." The remains were forwarded last evening to Fredericton, N.B., where interment will be in the family plot.

PREPAYMENTS FORGE AHEAD

The figure for 1935, up to yesterday, was $206,488, a total which exceeded that of 1933, the record year, by $16,227.

The collections to date are equal to those made up to February 10, in 1933, and to March 8 last year.

VICTORIAN DIES AT TRANQUILLE

Word has been received of the sudden death at Tranquille, near Kamloops, yesterday evening, of Miss Leslie Ferguson, a native daughter of Victoria, who has been a patient at the sanatorium since September last.

Miss Ferguson was born in this city and received her education at South Park School and the Victoria High School, and leaves a host of friends, who will learn of her passing with sincere sorrow. She was a daughter of the late Mrs. A. Ferguson and is survived by two sisters, Miss Beryl Ferguson, of the clerical staff of the Jubilee Hospital, and Mrs. Hugh Beck, Victoria, and aunts in Vancouver.

The remains will be forwarded to Vancouver for cremation.

SUBSIDY PLAN IS SUGGESTED

Organized System of Provincial Grants Favored By Dr. W. A. Carrothers

A solution to difficulties in Dominion and provincial relations in the form of a judicial committee to estimate annual subsidies to which provinces would be entitled under the British North America Act was suggested by Dr. W. A. Carrothers, chairman of the B.C. Economic Council, to members of the Round Table Club at their meeting in Spoedie's Cafe yesterday evening.

Before such a committee was established, the speaker suggested each province might investigate its own economic condition and then have a Dominion investigation. These would be followed by a Dominion conference to which the investigators' reports would be submitted.

Development of the subsidy system in Canada was reviewed by Dr. Carrothers. He felt the need existed today for a more scientific system which would abolish present bargainings.

He pointed out that under the grant-giving practice as carried out now there was a tendency to breed friction, which was undesirable, while other provinces had suffered losses as the result of Canada's trade policy, which favored Quebec and Ontario. A loss of $19,000,000 had been suffered by British Columbia because of this, he said.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

IT TOOK seven years for Harold "Jug" McSpaden to learn that the secret of successful golf rests in accuracy off the tee and fine work with the irons rather than terrific belts off the little wooden stand. And once that lesson was learned, the young Kansas City golfer rose from the ranks of mediocre pros to the top flight in one year!

* * *

It was during the winter golf tour of last season that McSpaden first blazed his name among the leaders of the money men. He amazed the golf world by turning in a card of 62, nine under regulation figures, during the Santa Monica, Calif., pro-amateur championship. That round, one of the greatest competitive innings of golf ever recorded, won the tournament for him.

All last summer the twenty-six-year-old Missourian, formerly known for his long driving game a la Lawson Little, concentrated on his iron play. And the current winter tour of the pros has seen him annex the Pensacola open with a seventy-two-hole score of 281; the Sacramento $5000 open, with 284 for four rounds; and the San Francisco national match play open.

* * *

In the second victory, he beat a field that included Walter Hagen, Paul Runyan, Gene Sarazen, and others. In the third, he put out Ky Laffoon to enter the finals against Harry Cooper, and simply astonished Lightning Harry with an exhibition of sub par golf, winning on the thirty-fourth hole, 3 and 2.

* * *

Like two other young pros who burned up the fairways in 1933 and 1934—Paul Runyan's first bid to fame came in 1933, and Ky Laffoon grabbed the glory last season—McSpaden got his start as a caddy, back in the middle twenties.

Powerful wrists gave the youngster some of the longest drives ever witnessed by Joe Matthews, pro at the Mission Hills Country Club in Kansas City, and Joe, recognizing Jug's potentialities, took him in hand.

* * *

His penchant for killing the ball on the tee, however, threatened to ruin a promising career, and it was only after he realized that distance was secondary to accuracy off the tee that he commenced to show his real greatness.

Last summer he gave advance notice of what was to come this year by winning the Oklahoma, Iowa, and Kansas City opens, finishing fourteen shots ahead of the field in the Iowa event, staged in Des Moines.

Just before the start of the current winter series, he remarked:

"This is going to be my year. I just feel it. Never have I hit shots better."

And if his performance so far is any indication of his playing the remainder of the year, a lot of pros are going to find pretty slim pickings along the tournament trail.

Luke Appling and Jack Hayes, both of whom were out for the greater part of the 1934 campaign with injuries, rate near the top as a keystone combination.

* * *

Like most major league managers, Dykes does not reside in the city where he operates during the summer. To see the manager of the Chicago Americans, you have to visit Philadelphia, where the personable Jimmy conducts a bowling and billiard academy.

Tired old eyes last season saw the White Sox as the worst club in the history of either big league, but Dykes is positive his athletes will not finish in the basement in 1935, despite the fact that there is not any too many changes in personnel.

The infield will be the same as that which started the 1934 grind—Zeke Bonura at first base, Hayes at second, Appling at shortstop and Dykes himself at the far turn. Hopkins is the only utility man on hand at this writing, but Dykes intends to acquire another before the back of the starting gun.

* * *

Vernon Washington, second best hitter in the American Association, supplants Simmons in left field, with Radcliffe, a former Philadelphia Athletic up again from Louisville, in right. Dykes now lets Mule Haas sit an extra hand, together with Haley, a nephew of the departed and respected Chick, who is being brought on from the Pacific Coast League, and Jocko Conlan.

Dykes dispels all doubt in regard to Simmons remaining with the White Sox, and will be disappointed if the Pole does not have one of his finest years. Radcliffe played enough in 1934 to convince his commanding officers that he is capable of making good on the big time.

Advance notices on Penner, drafted from St. Paul, are encouraging. The Sox also have Cliffhanger, a youngster who has demonstrated that he may develop into a backstop of either accord, and the veteran, Mervyn Shea and Buddy Rosar.

Last Minute Goal By Bun Cook Beats Montreal Maroons

Lester Patrick's Squad Retains Unbeaten Record For Year With 5 to 4 Win

Boston-Chicago Both Keep Pace

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An upward march by the New York Rangers that caused some early uplifting of National Hockey League eyebrows has developed into an astonishing parade through all January and into this short month. To-day the old boys and young ones of Lester Patrick are no less than stampeding.

They went into Montreal yesterday evening and ran their string to thirteen games without a defeat by upsetting the Maroons, 5 to 4. They were outshot by two to one, which had nothing whatever to do with the result because Dave Kerr, former Maroon goalkeeper, was very firm in the Ranger cage.

Sixteen seconds from the end of the third period, just when the Maroons seemed to have definitely quelled the New Yorkers after a long siege, Bun Cook bagged the winning goal. He accepted a pass from Ott Heller and fired from close range, the puck trickling over the line.

OTHERS KEEP PACE

Startling enough in its way, this smashing drive by the Rangers is being matched at the moment by a steady Chicago machine that has not lost a game in the last seven starts. The Hawks defeated Montreal Canadiens 4 to 1 yesterday evening to keep four points ahead of Rangers, and three up on Boston Bruins who lost no ground by beating the skidding Detroit Red Wings, 4 to 2.

It was a clean sweep for the one-two-three teams of the American section, but the Rangers, who have not tasted defeat since New Year's night, picked up more immediate glory, if nothing else, than the rest. The thirteenth game since the string started was no barrier.

Heller, the finest defenceman from Kitchener and Butch Keeling, a fine money player, who performs on the third forward line, contributed big shares to the triumph. Keeling scored late in the first period and again in the second to get Rangers back in the running after Maroons had run into a two-goal lead through Earl Robinson and Baldy Northcott.

Bun Cook carried on the good work from there, but it was a see-saw struggle to the finish. Bun got one and Rookie Bill Miller matched it for Maroons. Bert Connolly got another for the Blueshirts and Robinson matched this one for the fighting Montreplers. There was no time for another rally after the younger Cook got his winning goal.

BLOCKS FORTY SHOTS

Heller was credited with three assists and the spectacular Kerr, standing out on the edge of his goal-crease in the manner of the late Charlie Gardiner, turned aside forty shots. At the other end Alex Connell had only to handle twenty from Ranger sticks.

In a fast game at Chicago the Hawks spotted Canadiens a first period goal and then showed unexpected power in ramming in four for a decisive win. Leroy Goldsworthy, an ex-Hawk, got the only Montreal goal. Paul Thompson and Art Wiebe scored for Chicago in the second period and Johnny Gottselig and Tommy Cook contributed additional tallies in the third.

The ageing Howie Morenz, who has kept clear of the injury jinx this season in a Hawk uniform, was hurt in the second period. His arm was slightly bruised and the veteran speedster did not come out for the third session.

Young Charlie Sands, former Toronto player, had a good deal to do with Boston's win over Detroit. The Port Arthur winger scored two goals and assisted in a third scored by Nels Stewart. Marty Barry got the other. Only in the first half of the game did the Red Wings attack effectively. Herbie Lewis scored both Detroit goals, one on Cooney Weiland's pass.

New York Americans had to come from behind twice to get a 2 to 2 tie with St. Louis Eagles at New York in the overtime period Obie Bezimer scored for the Americans and then it was the Eagles' turn to rally. With Bill Brydge in the penalty box, Glen Brydson shot the final tieing goal.

Syd Howe and Carl Voss shared the first two St. Louis goals and Lorne Carr and Sweeney Schriner counted for the Americans, who are still in fourth place in the Canadian section.

CARDINALS IN ANOTHER WIN

Defeat Shamrocks 36 to 15 in Victoria High School Basketball Series

Cardinals added another win to their string of High School basketball victories when they downed the Shamrocks by a score of 36 to 15 in the last game of the first half of the Peden Cup schedule played yesterday.

Roy Taylor, tall Cardinal centre, was the first to tally when he sank a shot from right under the basket soon after the opening whistle. Play throughout the first period broke fairly even, with the Shamrocks trailing the Cards by three points. The half ended 12 to 9 for the latter.

Rallying in the initial moments of the final period, the Cardinals increased their lead and held it throughout the rest of the game in spite of a desperate defence on the part of the green-shirted opposition, who garnered only six additional points in the last half.

New York, Feb. 6.—The New York State athletic commission put on one of the most fantastic performances of a weird series yesterday arranging some way to let Max Baer box exhibition matches here, just as he does almost everywhere else in the country.

After an hour's regular session and a couple of hectic hours afterwards with the boxing writers, the commission found the way, but only after pausing, and then hastily amending twice, a regulation that might have been the most revolutionary in the history of boxing commissions.

NEW RULE

"All boxing championships must be at fifteen rounds," the commission finally decided. "It will be permitted, however, that a heavyweight champion may engage in bouts of a lesser number of rounds than fifteen, when his championship will not be at stake, provided, that said champion conforms to the rules of Section 7 (championships) of the New York state athletic commission."

Section 7 says a champion must defend his title here every six months to remain in good standing.

The commission also passed a ruling designed to permit Jack Dempsey to referee matches here. Although licensed, Dempsey doesn't care to accept the run of routine assignments with the rest of the arbiters, and heretofore the commission has refused to show him special favors.

DEMPSEY GETS O.K.

Hereafter, however, if a promoter asks for him or anyone else by name, the commission will assign the requested one to that show, though still reserving the right to choose him for any bout on the card.

The commission decided that the winner of a Lou Ambers-Sammy Fuller match March 1 will be the outstanding lightweight challenger here and asked Barney Ross, the champion, if it was all right with him. Barney, who was suspended for not fighting the commission choices, hasn't answered yet.

J.B.A.A. Officials Retained to Work on Undertaking; Plan Big May 24 Regatta This Year

Plans for a new boathouse were laid at yesterday evening's special meeting of the James Bay Athletic Association in the Gorge clubhouse. All officers of the rowing club proper were retained for another two months to proceed with the project.

Rex Askey is captain of the club, Hugh Francis vice-captain and Arnold Mann second vice-captain. The executive includes Douglas Hunter, Charlie Mallandaine, J. Mann Sr., Don Davis, Jim Temple and Dick George.

The gathering also considered methods of building up the membership and got away to an auspicious start with the registration of eleven new men yesterday evening.

Workouts in the lightweeks are expected to be started by senior coach, Dan Moses, within two weeks.

HOPING FOR RUGBY VISIT

Efforts Being Made to Have Californians Play Series Here in Easter Holidays

Some hope of an international rugby series between California universities and British Columbia teams was still entertained here to-day, as officials studied suggestions advanced by the southerners that they play in the province during the Easter holidays.

There was still hope, but no degree of certainty.

It was understood California had written British Columbia asking for a $1,500 guarantee for games here. As far as Victoria is concerned, it is willing to give the visitors 75 per cent of the net gates from such a series, but cannot guarantee the $1,500.

No actual invitation has been extended to the Californians to come here, but tentative negotiations are proceeding.

STANFORD MAY COME

Stanford University is reported to be anxious to come north for a tour. Their Easter holidays extend from March 22 to April 2. Should arrangements be completed, they might represent California if the other universities were unable to make the trip.

It was all very much a matter of conjecture to-day as the Victoria Rugby Union went ahead with plans aimed to secure voting strength for the Capital City equal to that of Vancouver interests in the British Columbia Rugby Union deliberations.

The matter will be taken up at a meeting of the provincial union scheduled for Vancouver on March 16, following the McKechnie Cup game there between Victoria and Vancouver on that date.

Osmundson to Play With Windsor Club

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 6.—With the signing of "Ossie" Osmundson to a contract, the stock of the Windsor Bull Dogs took a jump for to-night's International Hockey League game here with the Buffalo Bisons. Osmundson, who hails from Red Deer, Alta., has been playing with the Detroit Red Wings and Olympics up until a few days ago, when salary differences with Jack Adams resulted in his outright release.

He broke into professional company with the Victoria Cubs of the Pacific Coast League in 1930.

GOLF WINNERS

Finishing with a card of 86-16—72, Mrs. A. Watson captured A class honors in the women's monthly par competition, staged yesterday at the Oak Bay links. Mrs. A. Gillespie took B class laurels with a score of 100-30—72.

Cowichan Cup Rugby Interest Heightened

Suggestion Made Winners of Knockout Competition Represent Victoria in Rounsefel Cup Series; Gunners Meet Navy on Saturday

Cowichan Cup rugby play was given a boost to-day with the suggestion that winners of that trophy might be selected to play Vancouver champions in the Rounsefel Cup game which decides, by sudden death, the club title of British Columbia.

The Navy, winners of the Barnard Cup, have the right to claim the provincial title fixture this year as the result of the victorious march which carried them undefeated through the senior city league. However, since that series closed, the tars have lost the majority of their stars. The sailors still have a team and figure it very fair.

Should they be unable to take the Cowichan Cup series, however, they may relinquish their claim to the Rounsefel Cup fixture in favor of the Vancouver Island knockout champions who are yet to be determined. The Navy boys are not obliged to follow that course, but it was thought their sporting spirit would prompt them to give the strongest team in the city the right to meet the mainland titlists for the prized club trophy.

BIG GAME SATURDAY

Whether or not they will be in the fight for the Cowichan Cup will be determined on Saturday when they stack up against the Fifth Brigade, favorites to take the knockout series.

On Sunday, Nanaimo and Duncan teams will play on one of the upisland grounds to determine which of these squads will go into the semi-final round against the Garrison, in a game billed for February 16.

McKECHNIE CUP

But interest in rugby circles is not restricted solely to the Cowichan Cup play. Various teams have also their eyes cocked on the McKechnie Cup game on March 16, in Vancouver. It is understood a Victoria team will be chosen within the next two or three weeks, and will be trained until the McKechnie Cup game for that fixture.

Judging from the first McKechnie Cup game here and the knockout play of the local teams, the Fifth Brigade backfield, plus Bunn Brown and probably Howie Anderson, may go into the fixture en bloc. How the forwards may line up is still very much of a question.

Garrison vs Wanderers' Blues, Work Point Barracks.

Stag Jamboree Billed To-night

Rugby players and followers are expected to throng to the Armories this evening to support the stag jamboree sponsored by the Victoria Union to raise funds for St. Joseph's Hospital which cares for Victoria's injured rugby players. The event has been arranged by Major Stuart Robertson and will include the following features: 7.45 to 8.00, music by Canadian Scottish Band; 8.00 to 8.15, games; 8.15 to 8.60, boxing; 9.00 to 9.10, intermission; 9.10 to 9.20, entertainer; 9.20 to 9.30, intermission; 9.30 to 10.00, wrestling; 10.00 to 10.20, intermission; 10.20 to 10.50, magician; 10.50 to 11.15 intermission; 11.15, pillow fight.

CROWD "WINS" FOR BIG BOY

San Francisco Mat Fans So Hostile Referee Reverses Decision For Dean

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—Twenty minutes' boxing by the big crowd in attendance forced reversal of the wrestling decision given to Job Malcewicz, 200, Utica, N.Y., over Man Mountain Dean, 317, Georgia, yesterday evening.

Then the hullaballoo commenced. The crowd made undignified noises and several of the more extravagant and reckless threw their hats in the ring. Dean hopped about and pulled his beard and Mrs. Dean climbed through the ropes to urge him to battle for his rights.

HE YELLED DOWN

Gordenfield attempted to explain it was all a mistake and he had not tapped Malcewicz twice. The crowd booed. Promoter Jack Curran, who has trouble with his English, tried to explain but he got no farther than "ladies and—" before he was yelled down.

Finally Bruce Smith, radio sports announcer, spoke up and told the crowd it had been agreed that Dean would get the decision if Malcewicz did not show up and wrestle again in five minutes. Malcewicz did not reappear. The bout was booked for the "championship of California." The wrestlers split the first two falls in less than a half minute each.

POLOISTS TO OPEN SEASON

Victoria Centaurs Club Will Stage Number of Matches Here This Summer

At a recent meeting of the Centaurs Polo Club plans for the 1935 season, which is expected to open about the middle of March or the beginning of April, were made. The club now has fifteen playing members, three junior members and five honorary members.

Owing to the increased interest in polo, a cup has been donated for play this season, and a number of trophy matches are being lined up. The Foul Bay Road grounds will again be used for all matches.

According to the large number of fans, who followed last year's matches it is believed that Victorians are fast becoming ardent supporters of this excellent game. With the increased membership this season the Centaur Club hopes to play additional games.

The complete membership of the club follows:

Honorary members, Major-General E. C. Ashton, C.M.G.; Colonel H. G. Greer, Colonel A. Morris, Captain O. Cox and W. Morris; playing members, G. D. Tyson, J. Macalian, G. Edgelow, B. Deane-Freeman, H. PHYLLIS DEWAR GIVEN TROPHY

Regina, Feb. 6.—A prairie girl who has conquered British Empire mermaids in all the middle distance swimming records and holds Canadian championships from the 25-yard to the mile swim, was presented with the Beatty trophy as Canada's outstanding swimmer at the Regina Board of Trade banquet yesterday evening.

E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the C.P.R., the donor of the cup, presented the trophy to Phyllis Dewar, nineteen-year-old Moose Jaw girl. The trophy is awarded each year to the outstanding Canadian swimmer.

Miss Dewar, selected as 1934's aquatic star, is the first to receive this trophy. She was selected because of winning four first-place medals in the British Empire games, and winning the Barker trophy, emblematic of the ladies' one-mile swimming championship in the Dominion.

Mr. Beatty pointed out the trophy was designed by a Montreal artist with the thought the winner would be a man, and the figure on the trophy was originally that of a man ready to dive. When Miss Dewar was elected the winner, the trophy was altered.

Miss Dewar will leave for Vancouver to-night.

QUEBEC BEAVERS IN HOCKEY WIN

Quebec, Feb. 6.—Quebec Beavers yesterday evening forged into a second place tie with Providence Reds in the Canadian-American Hockey League by defeating Philadelphia Arrows 4 to 1.

Badminton Courts Are Closed To-day

With the Victoria Rugby Union "stag jamboree" being held to-night at the Armories, Bay Street, Denny Diespecker, secretary of the Victoria Garrison Badminton Club, announced yesterday that the courts will not be available for club play this evening.

Betting Features Golf At Caliente

Win, Place and Show Tickets Will Be Sold on Professionals Competing in $5,000 Open Starting Tomorrow; Gene Sarazen Criticizes Scheme

Agua Caliente, Baja, California, Mexico, Feb. 6.—Crack golfers from all over the United States have moved into Old Mexico for the seventy-two-hole Agua Caliente open golf tournament, opening to-morrow.

The tournament will mark the first time the well-known pros have teed off with $2 tickets bought at the pari-mutuel machines on their chances to lead the field for a day. There will be no betting on the ultimate winner.

Pari-mutuel betting on golf is not countenanced in the United States. No tickets will be sold on the amateurs on the big field.

THREE-WAY BETTING

Win, place and show tickets will be sold on sixty professionals, the windows closing for each player before they leave the tenth tee. The remainder will be included in "the field."

Agua Caliente offers a stern test of golf, even fours being par. When the wind blows the layout is a backbreaker. The course record is 65, made by Ban Mangrum, Los Angeles, and there were four rounds of 67 in the 1934 competition but weather conditions then were ideal. Wilfred Hiram (Wiffy) Cox won the 1934 tournament with a record seventy-two-hole score of 282.

Gene Sarazen, who won the first Agua Caliente tournament in 1930, when he collected $10,000 of the $25,000 total prize money offered, will not play this year. He left for his home in Connecticut after the Oakmont tourney at Glendale, issuing a statement highly critical of the pari-mutuel betting on golf.

Does Mr. Winch expect us to believe that "in about forty years" the Japanese settlements in South America will contain 50 per cent of the population of that continent? Even the fecundity of the Japanese will be hard put to it to accomplish such a feat as that in less than two generations. Mr. Winch must have been thinking of rabbits.

As I have suggested before, the list of members of, and subscribers to, the A.O.P.L. might be interesting. Even if their heads are too light for anything but floats, their names might suffice to sink the A.O.P.L.

Fortunately I am able to use my head as a hatrack without perforating the crown of my hat each time I do so. It is to be feared that this is a feat beyond the powers of Mr. Winch and the majority of the members of his organization.

Cheers As Coach Lines Teams Win

Two Bus Squads Take Arcanum and Melrose Fours For Ride in City League Table Tennis matches yesterday Evening

Cheers ran through the depot as two slashing, smashing Coach Lines teams turned the tables on their opponents in City League table tennis matches yesterday evening. The first line boys outbatted the Royal Arcanum team 10-6, while their running mates, the drivers, had the edge on the newly-organized Melrose Club, 11-5.

Playing on their own stamping grounds, the No. 1 team started off badly by dropping the first two games. Then the boys proceeded to tighten up their belts and tame the elusive ping pong sphere. After that the victory signal slowly climbed up the masthead while the Arcanum sharp shooters did their best to stem the surging tide.

Doug Parks, veteran ping pong exponent, and semi-finalist in the recent city championship, was best among the insurance men, while Jack Cunningham and Tommy Kay came through with three scalps apiece for the bus squad.

In the Melrose-Coach Lines No. 2 tangle fought out on the well-lighted, well-built, new table in the paint company's offices, the drivers had no walkaway. All the games were close, but the bus boys managed to cop most of the crucial points.

"Skink" Brynjolfson tripped the gay fantastic, and with some hot shots disposed of his four opponents, while F. Chattell proved the best with the bat among the paint boys, taking three of the drivers for a ride.

Coach Lines No. 1—J. Cunningham, 3; Tommy Kay, 3; W. McKay, 3; P. Stursberg, 2.

140,000 Pay to Watch Simon-pure Ice Teams Perform in New York

Gotham Promises to Become Centre of Amateur Hockey On Continent; Murray Patrick One of New Players Who Has Helped Draw Customers Through Gate

By GEORGE MAGUIRE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Feb. 6.—Some say Montreal, Hamilton or Winnipeg is the centre of amateur hockey activities on the continent. Maybe so, but for attendance records New York City is ready to offer an argument.

The last four Sunday afternoon amateur matches here—the Simon-pures are taboo on weekdays as Madison Square Garden is booked for professional hockey and other activities—has been a complete sell-out.

For fifteen games, the complete amateur schedule which includes college as well as eastern league puck-chasing, the patrons who paid to see the boys who play for the fun of it numbered more than 140,000.

It is expected the total paid admissions will run well over 300,000 by the time the season ends as the balance of the programme is studded with "naturals" and play-off encounters.

ENTHUSIASTIC SUPPORTERS

Tom Lockhart, United States Amateur Athletic Union official, who supervises the sport hereabouts, was sought out for an explanation of the increase in interest shown in the amateurs. Said he:

"One winner is more valuable than four losers. Last season we had four weak teams. Now the Brooklyn Hamilton-Crescents are the only metropolitan representatives in the eastern league, and their increased power is reflected at the box office.

"The Crescents are the answer to our success."

Lockhart then pointed out that some of the new players, particularly Murray Patrick, defenceman, formerly of Victoria, B.C., the Colville brothers Neil and Mac, formerly of Edmonton, Joe Cooper and Alex Shibicky, ex-Winnipeggers, had won an unusually large and rabid following from all parts of the city.

"The supporters of these boys, especially when they run up against Hershey Bears, show more feeling in their rooting than any local professional fan, even though the National Leaguers have been here for years."

Strengthening of the Crescents has also aided Baltimore, Atlantic City and Hershey, other E.H.L. members, in so far as attendance is concerned. There are only fifteen United States born players in the circuit, all others being Canadian-born.

OFFER BOUTS TO M'LARNIN

Vancouver Fighter May Accept Bouts With Two Middleweights at Chicago

Vancouver, Feb. 6.—Jimmy McLarnin yesterday had his first offer to step into the middleweight ranks, where he announced several days ago he would seek competition if he failed to find it in the welterweight division, which he now rules.

The Vancouver belter yesterday received a wire from Nat Lewis, Chicago promoter, offering him two bouts in the Windy City, one with Lou Halper and a later one with Marcel Thil, France, once recognized as the world middleweight titleholder, and who is expected in the United states in April.

Lewis offered Jimmy 35 per cent of the gate for his match with Halper, and the Vancouver Colt thinks it a good offer. A good crowd pleaser, Halper weighs around 158 pounds and Jimmy would be giving away only a few pounds.

"It sounds pretty good to me," Jimmy said last night. "I could do a lot worse."

However, Pop Foster, the welter king's manager, must be consulted on these transactions. Pop is now en route to California, where Jimmy expects to join him in a week or so. Then the two will head for the east and, so Jimmy says, arrange an extensive fight programme for 1935.

U.S. Tennis Heads Against New Plan

New York, Feb. 6.—Four days before its annual meeting Saturday in Cincinnati, Walter Merrill Hall, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, yesterday announced that the national body has gone officially on record against a European attempt to liberalize the international amateur rules.

Czechoslovakia started the movement to have an anti-film rule deleted and Britain followed suit.

BROUILLARD TAKES BOUT

Former Ring Champ Scores Technical Knockout Over Indian Joe Rivers

Los Angeles, Feb. 6.—Lou Brouillard, former world welter and middleweight champion, chalked up his second technical knockout in as many weeks at the Olympic Auditorium here yesterday evening when he stopped Indian Joe Rivers, Fresno middleweight, in the fourth round of their scheduled ten-round bout. The victor weighed 163 pounds, one more than his opponent.

The squat French-Canadian from Boston was far ahead in points when Referee George Blake terminated the festivities by raising Brouillard's hand after 2 minutes 38 seconds of fighting in the fourth. Rivers had up to that time taken two trips to the canvas for a count of nine.

ROSENBLOOM WINS

The bout was so uninteresting a goodly share of the disappointed crowd of 84,000 persons had filed out before the decision was rendered. Rosenbloom, with all the ring knowledge of his many years, was far too cagey for his opponent.

WOMAN TENNIS STAR THROUGH

Mrs. Edith Cross Jensen Forced Out of Competition Through Knee Injury

San Francisco, Feb. 6.—Old Man Injury has removed another leader from the ranks of women's tennis, and apparently this one is for good.

Mrs. Edith Cross Jensen, ranking player in the state and a participant on the victorious United States Wightman Cup team of 1929 is hobbling around on crutches as the result of injuring her knee a second time, and when the torn ligaments again heal, doctors say she still will not be fit for strenuous competition.

The news of Mrs. Jensen's plight came within a few days after the announcement from Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, former queen of the courts, that a back injury has mended sufficiently to return to action "as soon as warm weather permits." Mrs. Moody has not played since she was forced to default to Helen Jacobs in the United States final two years ago.

VARSITY WINS OVER PROVINCE

Scores 47 to 26 Basketball Victory to Regain Lead in Mainland League

Vancouver, Feb. 6.—University of British Columbia's fast-stepping hoop squad went back into first place in the Intervity Basketball League with a 47 to 26 decision over Province, Canadian champions, here yesterday evening.

Province managed to score the first basket but after that they were hopelessly outclassed as Varsity ran wild, led by their ace scorer, Art Willoughby, who counted fifteen of his team's points.

In the second half the Province men still unable to cope with the sparkling play of the students and were twenty or more points down throughout.

BOSTON CLUB RETAINS PARK

National Baseball League Team Gets Lease Until 1946; Fuchs Still Boss

New York, Feb. 6.—The Boston National League Baseball Club emerged yesterday from its final clinical examination with a fresh lease on financial life, its hold on Braves Field guaranteed formally by the league's club owners until 1946, and the administration of its harassed president, Emil E. Fuchs, retained in office with a rousing vote of confidence.

Settlement of the perplexing Boston situation was announced by Ford C. Frick, president of the National League, after a session of club owners, who also ratified the 1935 schedule, starting April 16, and adopted regulations limiting the experiment to be tried with night baseball this year.

Although the league did not come to the financial rescue of the Braves, according to Frick, it signed the renewal of the lease on Braves Field for the next eleven years on what Frick described as "highly favorable terms." The effect of this was not only to safeguard payment of the rent, which has been in arrears, but to forestall use of the park for anything but baseball.

William B. McKechnie, who has piloted the Braves five years, will be retained as manager.

CITY TO TRAIN

A workout of the Victoria City first division football team will be held to-night at 7.30 o'clock at the Veterans of France quarters. All players are asked to be on hand.

PHYSICIAN IN WIN BY NOSE

Los Angeles, Feb. 6.—Physician, which, in more than a year, has not been in the money, was just what the doctor ordered yesterday.

WESTMINSTER MAKES DENIAL

Salmonbellies Lacrosse Team Refutes Statement Easterners Play For Them

New Westminster, Feb. 6.—Officials of the New Westminster Salmonbellies box lacrosse team yesterday evening denied that Hugh Kelly of the Hamilton Tigers, Dominion champions two years ago, would play for New Westminster next season as reported in a Hamilton dispatch.

"Hugh Kelly is not going to play for us as far as I know," Grumpy Spring, coach of the Salmonbellies said. I had a letter from Kelly and Alex McPherson, a teammate of Kelly, about two weeks ago. They said they were coming to the Coast to play lacrosse, and would play for us if we got them jobs. I replied yesterday that there were no jobs here that our own boys could not fill."

Mayor Fred J. Hume, Salmonbellies president, also denied that the two easterners would be under the fishmen's color next season.

New York Stocks Rule Downward In Listless Session

Canadian Press

New York, Feb. 6.—Stocks sold lower in another listless market to-day. Losses of fractions to more than a point were numerous at the finish. The closing tone was heavy. Sales approximated 540,000 shares.

Mid-week business news was a little less favorable than of late. The rise in steel operations appeared to be levelling off, and power production was reported to have declined more than seasonally for last week. Two large chain store systems reporting January sales a little under last year.

U.S. Steel and Bethlehem declined major fractions, then recovered partially, but most of the list finished near the lowest. Rails were heavy, and motors were uniformly under pressure. Issues losing a point or more included American Telephone, Union Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Johns-Manville, American Commercial Alcohol and a few others.

Among Canadian stocks, Dome and McIntyre moved slightly higher, while International Nickel and Canadian Pacific held about even. On the curb, Hiram Walker eased a shade, but Lake Shore improved a fraction. Dominion Government bonds were quiet. Canadian dollars were 1-16 of a cent lower at 99.87½ cents.

Telephone turned heavy following overnight news of approval by the United States interstate commerce commission of an appropriation of $750,000 for further investigation. Some time ago, however, American Telephone officials said the company had nothing to conceal and welcomed the investigation.

MINE SHARES IMPROVEMENT

Canadian Press

Toronto, Feb. 6.—The mining section of the Toronto Exchange developed a less gloomy appearance this afternoon, and trading moved along a little faster and at slightly better prices. Morning trading had been dull.

Small advances were recorded in Hollinger, Bralorne, Pioneer and Wright Hargreaves. Buffalo-Ankerite and Coniagas were the highlights in the secondary group.

Unchanged or higher prices were showing at the close for San Antonio, Sisco, Reno and Pickle Crow. Little Long Lac lost 10.

In the base metals Noranda improved 25 cents, Fund Oreille 5 and Base Metals Corporation 2. Hudson Bay was fairly active and steady.

Great Crowds In Streets Of Paris

the riot dead, and to them the Cardinal granted absolution.

At the close of the solemn rites, a group of thirty or forty persons shouted "There goes the assassin!" as the Prefect of Police walked down the aisle with Premier Flandin and approached the church's massive doors. They continued to shout epithets, some of which were coupled with M. Flandin's name, but their calls were drowned by the noise of the excited crowd leaving the church.

Outside, a solid barrier of police kept the multitudes away from the steps and protected the egress of the Premier and the others from the house of worship.

FEAR ATTACK

The fear of an attack on Premier Flandin caused a flurry among the police when a man broke through their lines and ran toward the Premier. He was arrested, but told the authorities he wished only to tell the chief of government of the country's troubles. He was unarmed.

As the Premier's car left, the Royalist "King's Benchmen" shouted: "France for the French! On to the Place de la Concorde! Down with the assassins!"

The great crowds massed around the cathedral threatened to sweep the police lines apart, and several times the police were on the point of charging into them. Everyone held his ground there, however, and the clash came finally only when the shouting youths blocked the Place St. Michel and refused to move until they were driven off.

Part of the cathedral crowd moved slowly, through the packed streets toward the Place de la Concorde, but there they encountered other heavy forces of guards.

TROUBLE AT UNIVERSITY

In the meantime, marching columns of Royalists and other students threatened trouble around Sorbonne University. The Royalists tore down Socialist posters which had been put up during the night. Leftist groups quickly retaliated by tearing down manifestos printed by the Rightists. They also torne down government posters which ordered university classes suspended.

Red paint splashed in the Place de la Concorde provided a vivid reminder to-day of the fatal rioting of a year ago—on "Bloody Tuesday."

Splotches of red paint appeared on statues and the bridge in the historic square where most of the victims of the rioting fell before police bullets. Red inscriptions were painted on many walls overnight, and defiant posters blossomed in many sections.

A blanket of flowers marked the imaginary "unknown rioter's tomb" before which the Parisians came to doff their hats in salute and stand momentarily in silent homage in the Place de la Concorde.

By afternoon, a long double line of men and women bearing clusters of blossoms had congregated around the fountain in the Place. As they slowly passed the spot facing the Chamber of Deputies across the river Seine, they reverently laid their floral offerings in a heap in memory of the nineteen persons who died under police bullets as they rioted against "corrupt government" and the government machinery which had permitted the Stavisky scandal.

Hundreds of police watched the flower bearers from a distance while a few of them kept the crowd moving. General traffic, however, was not interrupted.

NATIONALISTS NOISY

Nationalist "troops," keeping "no manifestations" promise to the government, stayed away from the Place de la Concorde. With cheers for their leaders, hoot for the government, and deafening choruses of the Marseillaise, they swarmed the great square in front of Notre Dame as a demonstration of their tremendous rise in numbers here out of the chambles of the Place de la Concorde.

PARE LOSSES AT MONTREAL

Canadian Press

Montreal, Feb. 6.—A few of the former market leaders began a narrow recovery towards the close of the Montreal stock exchange to-day but the rally was insufficient to wipe out early losses and the market finished with a generally weakey appearance.

A few specialties touched new highs, Dominion Textile preferred moving up 8 points to a new top of 145 and Canada Celanese preferred touching a record high of 107, up a point. Dominion Glass gained 3 at 118.

Wabasso Cottons was one of the weak features with a loss of 2¾ points at 23. Steel of Canada common eased 1¼ points at 44¾. Losses of fractional amounts were shown by Industrial Alcohol, Hollinger, International Nickel and a host of others.

Wheat Prices Are Off Fractionally In Winnipeg Pit

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Feb. 6.—Late-session selling from an undetermined source carried wheat prices down fractionally here to-day. Values closed ⅛ to ⅛ cent lower, May at 83 and July 81⅝ cents.

The pre-closing burst of offerings was the only feature to a routine market. Foreign importers took only small lots of Canada's wheat to-day. Other market news contained little of a market influence.

Sale for export of a small quantity of oats was the only feature to dull cash and coarse grains trading. Country wheat marketings totaled 225,000 bushels, 100,000 bushels less than on the same day last year.

Chicago, Feb. 6 (Canadian Press)—Deepening of the shadow of gold clause cases did much to restrict grain business to-day, and served as a drag on wheat values.

A sustaining influence nevertheless was the fact this is the season for a beginning of high winds in the southwest.

Fifteen-year Sentence In Meisner Case

gun. The man said by Mr. Lobatt to be Meisner had shaved him, cooked his meals, even wound his watch for him.

"If this was kidnapping, what a delightful affair it was," said Mr. Bell.

Mr. Lobatt had said two revolvers were pointed in his face by his abductors and he looked into a man's face.

He said, "I will never forget the features of the man's face," went on Mr. Bell, adding:

"But he didn't see the cataract in his left eye."

Mr. Bell pointed to where Meisner sat, his left eye coated with a white film.

NOT ADDING MACHINE

The jury was not just a human adding machine to take facts and weigh them without regard for humanity, he said in closing.

He told "he jury to consider the affliction to Meisner's eye, which would eventually result in blindness if he were sent to penitentiary for what amounted to the rest of his natural life.

Court adjourned at 12.50 p.m. until 2.30 p.m.

CHARGES IN 1932

Under cross-examination Hall admitted having been charged with burglary in 1932 and an indictment by a grand jury, but said the case had never come to trial.

Hall and Seitter checked out from their hotel last night. It was reported here, and from Windsor they had crossed the border into the United States.

When court opened Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland said to Defence Chief C. W. Bell:

"You were examining a witness when court adjourned yesterday, Mr. Bell."

"Yes, my lord," was the reply.

"Where is he now?"

"I don't know. I learned to-day that he and another Covington detective who was also to be called as a witness in this case had left their hotel. I saw this from newspaper reports—which was the first I had learned of the incident—that the two men had crossed the border into the United States. I will agree to having a sheriff's officer follow these men on the strength of the original subpoena if the court desires it."

NO CONTACT OUTSIDE

"I want to make it clear," continued Bell, "that I had no contact whatsoever with these men outside of court, and when the witness took the stand yesterday it was the first I had seen of him."

Mr. Justice McFarland—Are you prepared to address the jury?

Court then recessed for fifteen minutes.

ADDRESSES JURY

Mr. Bell began his address after the recess. He referred to Leroy Hall and Albert Seitter, who "took French leave."

"Naturally that must be of great consequence to you in considering any evidence you heard from that source."

"You may consider looking at the matter as a whole that those two men have 'tatted' on the prisoner."

It would be a possible conclusion, he said, to decide that the two men had let the prisoner down in order to protect other persons responsible for the crime with which Meisner is charged.

"This man (Meisner) is not before this court as a bookmaker. He is only before this court as a man charged with a serious crime, and that alone is for your judgment," Mr Bell continued.

He said the three charges on the indictments had all developed on the one act of kidnapping.

LACKED MONEY

Mr. Bell referred to the forces of police and legal talent utilized in the Crown's conduct of the case. With these he compared the defence's lawyers, three including himself, and the lack of money for investigation.

He had taken the oath to keep his barrister's oath that he would refuse no just cause.

Mr. Bell said emphatically that the man before the court was innocent until proved otherwise.

"Ten thousand suspicions marshalled against a man do not prove him guilty. You must rely on proof, proof, proof," he said.

Evidence had been introduced to show there was a kidnapping—abduction—but it had to be proved beyond a shadow of doubt that there actually were such acts before one step further could be taken.

Mr. Bell recalled Mr. Lobatt had said he had been asked by his kidnappers: "Do you know of any good payrolls?" These men were asking their captive to become an accomplice to a robbery, Mr. Bell said.

"Do you believe that any such words were ever spoken? Yet John Lobatt swore to it. It is not for me to explain this," he said.

He referred to the drive of Mr. Lobatt to a Muskoka cottage by his alleged abductors. The car had stopped four times for gasoline and provisions. Why did not Lobatt call for help?

"If I had been in that position I would have called so loudly you could have heard me from here to Woodstock," continued Mr. Bell.

DRAMATIC END

The dramatic finish to the case—Canada's first ransom kidnapping trial—came after the Crown had placed twenty-three witnesses in the box, including Mr. Lobatt, who identified Meisner as one of a trio of abductors.

Mr. Lobatt told of his detention at the Leonard Lake hideout, where he was chained to a bed. The original ransom demanded was $150,000, but Mr. Lobatt testified he had been released when an agreement on $20,000 had been made. It is understood this was never paid.

Meisner surrendered in Detroit last September, claiming he had been in Covington, Kentucky, throughout the whole abduction proceedings. He waived extradition, maintaining he could establish his alibi.

Last month Kingston P. Murray was arrested in Covington in connection with the kidnapping. He is still held there, on request of Ontario authorities, awaiting extradition hearing.

UNDER TWO NAMES

Leroy Hall, when questioned on the witness stand yesterday by Mr. Bell, said he had known Meisner for about two years under the names of Davis and Morrison.

He described Meisner as a frequenter of "gambling joints" and said Meisner disappeared for fifteen days in June but came back near the end of the month. The detective said he kept tab on Meisner and others who frequented the "joints," and testified that Meisner was in Covington in July and August.

"But on August 14, 15 and 16 particularly," asked Bell at one point.

"He was there all month; if he hadn't been I would have known," replied Hall.

BOND MARKET IS INACTIVE

Associated Press

There were no indications of an enlivened interest on the buying side of corporate obligations by reason of yesterday's decline.

Low priced rail bonds still were without vigorous support and several continued to droop. Prime corporate issues were firm.

Tarzan of the Apes

Within the cabin Jane saw the Houzou almost through the window. She reached for the fallen revolver. Raised it. Then the new Esmeralda heard her alive. She could not hurry her. She knew was one cartridge in the excellent weapon before she turned the cold muzzle toward herself again.

Quickly Jane ran to the side of Esmeralda. She pressed the muzzle of the revolver tight against that devoted heart, closed her eyes, and—Sabor, the Houzou, emitted a frightful shriek. The girl startled, recalled and intent to face the brute, again raising the weapon against her own temple.

She didn't fire again. Surprised, she saw the huge animal being drawn slowly back through the window and in the moonlight the blade of two men. Tarzan had seized the long tail in his hands, braced himself, and throwing all his mighty strength into the effort to draw the beast back.

Slowly the Houzou was emerging from the window. Tarzan, suddenly relaxing his hold upon the tail, sprang full upon her back. Tighter his strong young arms forced her head lower and lower. The muscles of Tarzan's shoulders and biceps bulged into corded knots—a superhuman effort—and Sabor's vertebrae snapped!

Instantly Tarzan was on his feet. For the second time Clayton heard Tarzan give the bull-ape's savage roar of victory. He ran toward Jane's upraised cry. Calming her fears, they came out to the dead body of the Houzou, to thank their rescuer. But Tarzan of the Apes was gone.

Is Business Good School for Wives? | Dorothy Dix | Says Yes—and No!

A YOUNG MAN wants to know if business girls make good wives. To which inquiry one must return the noncommittal answer of "Yes—and no."

Undoubtedly in many ways the best training a girl can get for matrimony is in business. It broadens her mind and clears her vision. It brings her down out of the clouds and plants her feet on a hard world. It cures her of sentimentalism and the propensity to make everything a personal issue, which are the curses of her sex.

It teaches her to control her temper and her emotions, for no girl could keep a job if she went into hysterics every time she was criticized. It teaches her promptness and accuracy, for her bread and butter depends on her punching the time-clock at the precise minute and turning out good work. It teaches her the value of money and how much labor and pain and weariness go into the making of every dollar.

Above all, it teaches her understanding and sympathy with men. She knows, as the home-keeping girl cannot possibly know, how terrific is the strain of life upon men, how killing is the pressure under which they work. She knows that sick or well they must drive on, and that they dare not stop for even a moment to rest lest their competitors pass them by in the race.

She knows from experience that the worker cannot always control his or her own time. She knows what it is to have nerves so frazzled that everything that anybody did irritated her into a sharp speech. She knows what it is to be so tired when she came home at night that all in the world she wanted was just to crawl to a couch and flop down on it and rest.

So the business girl is pretty sure not to waste her husband's money and to get value received for every cent she spends. She is also pretty sure to be interested in his work and to be willing to make sacrifices to help him along. She doesn't have conniption fits when he is late for dinner or telephones at the last minute that he has to meet a buyer from Oshkosh. She does not feel herself aggrieved because he does not feel bright and chatty of an evening, nor does she drag him out when he is half dead with weary to night clubs.

So far the business school is better than the domestic school for brides, but if it fits them in some ways for marriage, in other ways it unfits them. For the effect of a business training seems to be to kill the domestic instinct in women.

At any rate, you seldom see an ex-business girl who isn't bored to tears by cooking and washing and scrubbing, and who doesn't pine for her mahogany desk or her old place behind the ribbon counter. Of course work in a kitchen is no harder than work in an office and sweeping floors is no more monotonous than pounding a typewriter, but the one is done in silence and alone, while the other is done to the tune of bustle and entertainment, people coming and going, and gay comradeship.

Girls just naturally get more kick out of beautifying themselves of a morning and going downtown to work than they do out of putting on a bungalow apron and getting busy with the vacuum cleaner. Besides, the girl in business feels that she is doing something worth while and that she is an important cog in a big machine, whereas she despises the domestic labor that she can do with one hand and half a lobe of her brain. A young woman who gave up a high executive position in a big firm to marry once said to me: "To put me to run a six-room apartment is like putting a thousand-horsepower engine to do a one-horsepower job."

Of course there are girls who have the domestic complex, who never thrill to anything but pots and pans and whose favorite reading is the cookbook. These are always outlanders in the business world. They never take root in an office and they are never happy until they hang up their own parlor curtains. But the average woman, and especially the successful business woman, no matter how much she loves her husband always casts a wistful backward glance at her old job.

Then there is the financial side of the matter. For any woman to once hold her pay envelope in her hand is for her to have tasted blood, and never again can she be contented to be a parasite and have pittsts and quarters and dimes doled out to her by even a generous hand. She has realized that she can stand upon her own feet, that she can support herself, that she need not be dependent upon any one. That is the grandest and most glorious feeling that any human being ever experiences, and the joy of it is raised to the nth power to a woman, because it is something she didn't dare even hope for.

And so when a girl marries and gives up her financial independence and goes back to panhandling a husband for her clothes and movie money, she doesn't take kindly to it, and she doesn't do it in a way that is soothing to masculine vanity. If a man wants a wife who will kiss the hand that hands her a dollar bill and who will tell him how wonderful and generous he is, he should never pick out a business girl.

And while it may be comforting to have a wife who understands a tired business man, there are drawbacks to having one who knows him too well and who has heard all the alibis with which trusting, domestic wives are placated when their spouses step out of an evening.

So it would seem that there are both advantages and disadvantages to marrying a business girl. Which, of course, also goes for marrying any kind of girl.

Uncle Wiggily and the White Mice

By HOWARD R. GARIS

One day as Uncle Wiggily was hopping over a snow-covered field where in summer a farmer had raised corn, the rabbit gentleman heard, coming from a pile of dried cornstalks, a sad, squeaking voice.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" the voice said.

"This sounds like trouble," thought Uncle Wiggily. "I wonder if I can be of any help?" That was Uncle Wiggily's way—always wanting to help where he could.

He hopped closer to the pile of stalks, some of which had a few old ears of corn still on them. Then Uncle Wiggily heard the voice saying:

"Well, children dear, I'm sure I don't know what to do. You must soon run out to play and after a while go to other piles of stalks for more corn. That corn is left here will be gone in another day."

"But if we go out, Mother," said a very tiny squeaking voice, "Old Hoot will catch us. He always swoops down out of the tree where he sits watching and tries to catch us in his beak or claws as we go out to play."

MOTHER MOUSE WANTED HELP

"It's terrible! It's too bad, my dears," said the mother's voice. "I wish I knew what to do so you would be safe from Old Hoot. If only some one would help us!"

"I will help you!" cried Uncle Wiggily, for now he knew who it was talking. A family of mice, the smallest kind of white children, living in the pile of dried cornstalks sticking up in the snowy field. "What is the trouble and who is Old Hoot?" asked the hopping gentleman.

"Old Hoot is a big owl bird who always swoops down and tries to catch some of my little mice," said the mother mouse as Uncle Wiggily stood at the door of the cornstalk house. "Everytime my little mice go out Old Hoot swoops down on them."

"Where does this owl bird live?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"In a pile of that big tree on the edge of the field," said the mother. "He is there night and day. Old Hoot can see quite well in the daytime and also at night. Only my mice don't go out at night. They must go out by day, but they hurry fast. Old Hoot watches them so closely."

"That's too bad," said Uncle Wiggily.

"It wasn't so bad in the evening," squeaked a little girl mouse. "Then their way was more on the ground, which was nearly the same color as we are. We are grayish brown, and my mother, with white on the ground. If we run across it Old Hoot can easily see us and then he swoops down on his big wings and tries to catch us in his sharp claws and beak."

"If only we were white mice instead of grayish brown," said Mrs. Mouse. "Old Hoot couldn't see us on the white snow and we would be safe from him. Oh, dear!"

CHANGED INTO WHITE MICE

"Ha! That gives me an idea!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I will change you all into white mice and then Old Hoot will think you are bits of snow blowing along and he won't swoop down and get you."

"But how can we be changed into white mice?" asked the Mother.

"Very easily," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll sprinkle talcum powder on you. Wait here and I'll go get some."

Hopping quickly to his bungalow, Uncle Wiggily got a tin of talcum powder from his wife's bureau. He sprinkled the white powder on the grayish brown mice. Now they looked like snow mice, and when they ran out to play or to get some corn, Old Hoot, the owl, didn't notice them. They didn't show at all against the snow. So Uncle Wiggily saved the mice from being caught by the owl and Old Hoot wondered and wondered why he couldn't see any more mice coming from the pile of cornstalks. But he was fooled all right, for he flew away.

And if the gar store will stop trying to make a cake all by itself and let the sugar water help, I'll tell you more about Uncle Wiggily and Mrs. Mouse.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1935

Although to-day is dominated by benefic aspects, according to astrology, adverse planetary influences too are active. It is a day to use energy wisely.

Those to-day are under a favorable rule of the stars which may stimulate them to mass activities in philanthropic or reform movements. Peace organizations will gain attention.

Warning is given that there may be much envy and jealousy among women in business or politics. Competition for high places will be bitter and will cause sweeping changes in methods of opportunity for women.

Good news may be carried on the wires. This is a rule under which many will unite to bring about reforms that will combat vice and crime.

Lucky are those who sign legal papers while this configuration prevails. Even promissory notes may be fortunate in the end.

Amusements of every sort should profit. Theatres are well directed by the stars and music will gain widespread popularity among persons of many tastes. Motion pictures again are to undergo changes through new inventions and some reformations among those who control the pictures.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of adventure and excitement in business, pleasure and personal affairs are foreshadowed.

Children born on this day probably will be progressive and energetic. Subjects of this sign are intellectual.

Charles Dickens, English novelist, was born on this day, 1812. Others who have celebrated it are a brewer, Isaiah Cook (Oshkosh, 1854), and a banker, Hiram Ellis.

ASK NEW BILL BE CHANGED

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—Assumption by the Dominion Government of the full share of old age pension payments, establishment of a national system of sickness and disability insurance, enactment of a thirty-hour week, and amendments to the British North America Act in order to empower the Dominion Government to operate with wider jurisdiction, to-day were advocated in requests to the cabinet from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. The congress, headed by Tom Moore, its chairman, presented to the government the legislative proposals adopted at its last convention.

These differed little from those which have been urged on the government from time to time, although notice was taken of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett's recent utterances and unemployment insurance legislation now before the House of Commons.

Delegates expressed regret that relief works authorized at the last session of Parliament had not been more quickly developed. They urged all building projects be proceeded with immediately and that, at the present session, a larger sum be appropriated to expand activities launched last year.

HOUSING SCHEMES

They suggested the government should undertake slum area clearance, finance housing schemes, and be more liberal in its allowance towards elimination of grade crossings.

Recalling the draft convention of the international labor organization in 1919 provided for a five-day working week of six hours a day, the delegates asked this be enforced on all government undertakings.

RELIEF CAMP PAY

In relief camps they requested "a fair and reasonable wage" for those employed "instead of the current 25 cents a day allowance." This, in their opinion, would give an opportunity for men in those camps to "save sufficient from their earnings to return quickly to their normal surroundings, where they would have a chance of again becoming absorbed in the industrial life of the country."

NATIONAL RESPONSIBILITY

"All work done by the government, whether classed as relief projects or otherwise, should be subject to the provisions and regulations of the Fair Wages Act of 1930," said the Labor spokesman. On unemployment relief, they suggested the Dominion Government should accept payment of direct relief to all needy workers as a national responsibility.

OLD AGE PENSIONS

Regretting that eight years after its enactment neither Quebec nor New Brunswick had adopted the Old Age Pension Act, the delegates urged all responsibility for the act be shouldered by the Dominion. The Dominion now pays 75 per cent of the old age pensions.

"Another discriminatory feature of the present legislation," they said, "is the clause demanding five years' residence in a province immediately prior to an application being made."

"The injustice could be eliminated by repeal of this section of the act, but the same purpose would be more satisfactorily achieved if the responsibility for the administration of the act was accepted by the federal government," the delegates declared.

ECONOMIC COUNCIL

The Congress spokesman commended the proposal to establish an economic council. They advocated approval of collective bargaining as a necessary basis of development of codes of fair practices in industry, the right of employees to organize free from employers' control, extension of the Industrial Disputes Act to all tariff protected industries, thus "providing the means whereby employees could obtain public inquiry at any time into unfair conditions of labor," and stricter enforcement of minimum wage laws to prevent evasions and violations.

B.N.A. ACT CHANGES

The Congress representatives requested amendment of the B.N.A. Act to ensure full competence of the federal government to enact any social and labor legislation, to permit control over industrial and commercial activities essential to ensuring observance of proper labor standards and eliminate unfair competition between provinces, to empower the Dominion to regulate highway transport, restrict powers of the Senate to veto bills passed at two separate sessions of the House of Commons, and abolish appeals to the Privy Council in London.

CENTRAL BANK

They regretted the Bank of Canada, while partially nationalized through retention by the government of the governor's appointment, had been left so far as ownership was concerned in the hands of private interests. They demanded prohibition of inter-locking directorates of banks and more stringent supervision over loans to brokers. Bank employees should be given the right of association, they said.

Reduction of interest rates and employment by the government of national credit to finance national undertakings were urged strongly.

WORKS DELAY

Taking up points raised by the labor spokesman one by one, Premier Bennett explained some delay had occurred in launching the $40,000,000 public works programme, but this had been due in some measure to the administration's policy of engaging outside architects and time required to get plans. A list of further works had been requested showing what public works were necessary and that would serve a useful purpose. The Prime Minister said he had been surprised at the smallness of the list.

CAMPS FOR YOUTHS

The Premier declared unemployment relief camps existed solely to prevent young men from becoming "derelict wanderers over the face of the earth." More than 19,000 youths had been absorbed in useful employment since they were opened.

In Ontario the Dominion Government had spent $40,000,000 in relief contributions. This indicated that province and its municipalities had, with Dominion aid, disbursed more than $100,000,000 since the depression began, but distribution of relief could not be undertaken as a centralized function of government.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

Turning to the Unemployment Insurance Act, the Prime Minister declared it embodied, so far as was possible having regard to Canadian conditions, the bill passed last year in Great Britain. There would never be an insurance measure without some receiving larger benefits for less payment. The government's object was to keep unemployment insurance out of politics.

The government contemplated an old age pension scheme similar to that in the United Kingdom, where people purchased national savings certificates. If the qualification age for pensions was lowered it would place an unbearable financial load on the country.

Consideration of the British North America Act would be given to a parliamentary committee. He reminded the delegation that, with respect to abolition of appeals to the Privy Council, leave to appeal was granted by provincial supreme courts, over which the Dominion authority had no jurisdiction. The Supreme Court of Canada had long ago abolished appeals on criminal cases.

Inquiries Into Ship Collisions of Monday

Government Official to Decide If Official Hearing Necessary; Captains of Ships Come to Victoria For C.P.R. Inquiry

Company inquiries into the collisions in which the Canadian Pacific steamers Princess Alice and Princess Charlotte figured on Monday in Vancouver harbor were held in Victoria yesterday afternoon and this morning. In Vancouver a government inquiry into the Princess Alice-ferry collision was held yesterday.

Capt. R. W. McMurray, R.N.R., manager of the B.C. Coast Service, presided at the company inquiries into the mishaps. The findings will not be made public. The inquiries were held in the manager's office in the terminal building on Belleville Street.

Capt. W. G. Palmer, master of the Princess Alice, and Capt. Arthur Slater, of the Princess Charlotte, came to Victoria to testify at the hearings.

OFFICIAL INQUIRY

Capt. P. H. Lindsay, examiner of masters and mates in British Columbia for the Department of Marine, is hoding a preliminary investigation at Vancouver into the collision between the ferry and the Princess Alice. His decision will decide whether an official inquiry by the Dominion Government wreck commissioner will be necessary.

Salvage boats were searching for the sunken ferry No. 6 in Vancouver harbor this morning. Dense fog yesterday hampered salvage operations. It is believed the ferry lies on the steeply shelving bottom outside the First Narrows and the rush of the tides may sweep it into deeper waters. Monday afternoon it was reported the salvors had grappled with the wreck in 120 feet of water outside the Narrows. When a diver was sent down, however, it was discovered that the grappling lines had located only an old boiler. The ferry was insured for $16,000.

Weather conditions at the time the Princess Charlotte and the Chelohsin were in collision off Point Atkinson were particularly bad. The fog was extremely thick and the night was very dark. The fog rolled in confusing banks, thinning slightly for a moment, then rolling in opaque moisture. This condition made navigation even more difficult than in ordinary fog.

PHONOGRAPH TO PLAY IN COURT

Records of Mrs. Rudy Vallee's "Tapped" Conversations to Be Heard

Associated Press

New York, Feb. 6.—Records of telephone conversations, which once before popped up in the legal entanglements of Rudy Vallee and his estranged wife, Fay Webb Vallee, are due for an appearance in Supreme Court here to-morrow.

Hyman Bushel, Vallee's lawyer, has a portable phonograph on which he wants to play for Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo what are supposed to be records of "tapped" telephone conversations which Mrs. Vallee engaged while she was residing in New York.

Justice Cotillo is hearing her application for more than $100 a week separate maintenance, but there was no session to-day so that Rudy could check up on his yearly profits.

New Captain On Ms. Heian Maru

With a new captain on her bridge, the N.Y.K. motorship Heian Maru reached northwest ports the other day from Japan. Capt. T. Araki was in command, replacing Capt. S. Kimura.

Capt. Araki was last in northwest ports, including Victoria, in 1919 as master of the ss. Fushimi Maru. For the last ten years he has been master of his company's vessels in service between the Far East and Europe. His last ship on that run was the smart new motorship Yasukuni Maru. During the last year he was engaged in shoreside duty with the N.Y.K. at various ports in Japan.

BYRD LEAVES POLAR AREA

Little America, Antarctica, Feb. 6.—Little America came to-day to the end of the second and possibly the last cycle in its career as a south polar exploration base.

By this evening, unless some unforeseen situation arises, the second Byrd Antarctic expedition will be homeward bound.

Two of the smaller planes were slightly damaged in the transfer from the ice to ship. A heavy beam accidentally crushed their fuselages while being swung aloft on the boom.

The expedition's two cows and the bull, placed in heavy crates, were deposited gently on the forward well deck of the supply vessel.

Speedy Repair Job Done On Charlotte

Propellers Changed and Temporary Repairs Effected in Short Time; Ship Repair Plants Busy With Many Ships

A speedy repair job has been effected on the ss. Princess Charlotte by Yarrow's Limited of Esquimalt. The ship went into the Dominion Government Drydock at Esquimalt yesterday at noon and was floated out to-day at noon and at 2.15 o'clock took her regular sailing to Vancouver in the triangle service.

Yesterday afternoon and during the night workmen changed the vessel's propellers, which had been damaged when the ship struck a partly submerged log early Monday morning when bound for Seattle from Vancouver. Temporary repairs were made to the damage she sustained during a collision on Monday evening off Point Atkinson with the ss. Chelohsin.

When the Charlotte can be spared in a few weeks she will have permanent repairs made. All damage suffered in the mishap was above the water line and temporary repairs were all that are necessary for the time being.

NORAH OFF RUN

The Princess Norah, which took the Charlotte's place, will go to Vancouver this evening to commence loading cargo for her Friday evening sailing to Alaska.

Shipyards at Victoria and Vancouver are unusually busy these days. The big freighter Bellingham, which could find no berthing space in Vancouver, went to Seattle yesterday for repairs. She could have been handled at Esquimalt, but her owners decided to send her to Seattle because she carried cargo for that port. She is a unit of the Tacoma-Oriental Line.

The Bellingham was slightly damaged when she ran aground off Point Grey in the fog. Several plates under No. 5 hold will be replaced. She was taking water through a small hole when she reached Vancouver.

Esquimalt harbor presents a busy appearance, although several of the ships there are "sleeping" for a few weeks. The Princess Charlotte was in the drydock this morning; the ss. Benlawers is receiving repairs alongside the drydock wharf; the Childar, Princess Victoria, Amur and Watco are alongside Yarrow's outfitting wharf and the Mounted Police motorboat St. Roch was floated off the slipway yesterday afternoon, after extensive repairs and returned to her berth at the Naval Barracks.

Engine parts for the Watco will arrive from England in a few days and work will start immediately.

WILL CONVERT SAILING SHIPS

The old sailing ships Star of England and William T. Lewis, which have been tied up in the inner harbor for several days will go to Vancouver shortly to be converted into hog fuel barges by the North Vancouver Ship Repairs Limited, according to word received here this morning from the mainland port.

The other two ships, the Riverdale and the Lord Templeton will probably be converted into barges in Victoria. They will be operated by the Island Tug and Barge Company in coastal service.

The Star of England was the only one of the four ships to arrive here fully rigged. Since her arrival she has been stripped down and nothing much now remains except her hull and part of the masts.

ACTOR BACK FROM INDIA

John Barrymore Reaches N.Y. By Liner Rex After Trip to Father's Birthplace

New York, Feb. 6. — John Barrymore, dressed in light grey lounging flannels and a bluish flannel jacket which had served him all the way from Calcutta, arrived last week on the Italian liner Rex after a voyage to India to see the birthplace of his father, the late Maurice Barrymore, at Fort Agra.

It developed, however, that Mr. Barrymore did not get to Agra, being pressed for time and finding to his surprise too many diversions in Calcutta and Madras to permit him to complete his pilgrimage.

After reporters had knocked on his cabin door and were advised, with a wink and a grimace, that "I'll be about in a few minutes," the actor admitted his interviewers and described the fruitless voyage and his later visit to England to confer with officials of the Gaumont British Company on a new picture.

From then on, until the time the Rex docked, Mr. Barrymore exchanged quips, parried questions as to his experiences in the Far East, and denied that there was any impending rift in the Barrymore family. He said that Mrs. Barrymore, the former Dolores Costello, and their two children, would accompany him to England in the summer, when he would make a picture.

There were two reasons for his trip to India, he said. An Indian potentate had invited the actor to visit him there. But when he reached India he realized for the first time that it was a "large place," and that his host lived too far north.

"But I met some very interesting people," he said. "There was one, an Indian poetess, Sarojoni Naidu. There were a lot of others, but for the minute I can't think of their names."

There was a persistent rumor on the ship that the night before landing the picture, "Bill of Divorcement," in which Mr. Barrymore appeared with Katherine Hepburn, had been shown and that he had slept through the performance.

"Come to think of it, he replied, "I have seen that picture somewhere. Perhaps it was in the projection room. Strange, but every woman who has appeared in the leading feminine role has become famous: Katherine Hepburn in the American talkies, Meggie Albenesi in the British talkies, and Katherine Cornell on the American stage."

Mr. Barrymore said he would be in New York for about ten days or two weeks and then return to Hollywood.
